

LAKE DESCRIBES LONDON BOMBING

By AUSTEN LAKE

To one, like the writer who knows the nerve-tightening effect of London's air raid sirens, the insistent drone of Nazi bombers, the heavy ground-shaking detonations of high explosives and the infernal glow of incendiary fires, the latest headline "London suffers its worst air raid" induces an internal nausea.

In late months Nazi bombers have come over London on sporadic raids, a few flights at a time and dropping their loads scattering at random. The damage, while not negligible, was comparatively small, an occasional house or building tumbled in a landslide of masonry and timber. But repeated waves of bombers, coming at steady intervals through the night, is a horror which no American who has not been under the bombs can conceive.

There was, before I left, one such night when the sirens screamed in early evening and the "all clear" was not sounded until the first shell pinks of dawn lit the East—a night when no Londoner slept and armies of fire wardens raced hither and thither with their portable apparatus and sand buckets, putting out hundreds of fire bombs which rained from the sky as though from a celestial salt shaker.

Traffic at Standstill

The sky along the Thames river was a fitful rose glow, silhouetting the roof tops and throwing a thick smoke haze across Hyde Park, where batteries of anti-aircraft guns kept up an ear-deafening chorus.

For the first time while I was in London street-traffic halted, diverting itself into the little side highways and hiding against the shelter of taller buildings. Pedestrians, callous to the threat of bombs, hurried into subways and shelters and stayed, marooned from home and hotel, for the entire night. Folk, isolated from securer spots, herded into cellars that were opened hastily.

An Ominous Ring

Such a night, though perhaps more intensively, was that on Wednesday.

How many more areas of the great sprawling city have been levelled or made hideous by concerted waves of raiders, we of America won't know for some time. For London authorities are chary of giving damage in-

NEW-TYPE BOMBS BLAST AT BERLIN

By MERRILL MUELLER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 18—Pilots of the Royal Air Force last night answered the savage Nazi aerial assault upon London by bringing flaming death to the very heart of Berlin in the most terrific massed bombing attack yet suffered by the German capital.

The announcement of the raid was pointedly directed at London's civilian population who had clamored for revenge, but there was careful avoidance of the word "reprisal" by Herbert Morrison, minister of home security.

Nonetheless, the RAF pilots winged eastward to their target as demands increased for a "massacre" raid of retaliation upon Berlin. Those demands were answered today by Morrison's announcement of a successful blasting of the center of Berlin with the latest type most powerful bombs developed in Britain.

"I have news for the civil defense men and women who went through the big attack on London Wednesday night," Morrison said during a tour of inspection of civil defenses in West London.

"The very powerful bombs recently introduced into service by the RAF were dropped on Berlin for the first time last night. They were seen to burst in the center of the city."

USE NEW PLANE

"Unlike the Nazis, we make no hysterical noises about reprisals. We have our plans. They will be carried out. Berlin was bombed according to plan."

"Let Hitler understand that we have as much right to bomb Berlin as he has to bomb London."

Morrison revealed that some of the new-type high explosives were carried to Berlin by the new four-motored Short-Stirling bomber, which is capable of carrying several tons of bombs and reputedly is the most powerful in use by any air force in the world.

Details of the Short-Stirling are secret, but it is known to have a long range, high speed and particularly strong defense weapons.

Twenty-four hours after the Nazi raid on London, it still was impossible to obtain even an approximation of the death toll exacted by the deadly rain of high explosive and incendiary bombs. It was obvious, however, that the toll of dead and wounded would be high.

FULLED NO PUNCHES

An air ministry communique showed that the British airmen held back no punches in mauling Berlin with new and more powerful bombs. The communique said:

"A number of bombs were dropped on targets in the center of Berlin. Fire immediately broke out. The attack was pressed home and many bursts were seen across the targets. Substantial damage certainly was done."

The new assault on Berlin was

Fail of Yugoslavia Frees Nazi Troops For Drive on Greece

BERLIN, April 18 (AP)—The German high command followed up the capitulation of Yugoslavia today by announcing that 17,000 prisoners had been taken on the Greek front and that the battle was going successfully for German arms despite "the most difficult terrain and weather conditions."

No confirmation has been received in London of the German claim that the Yugoslav army has surrendered, according to a British Broadcasting Corp. broadcast picked up in New York today by NBC—Editor's Note.

Numerous "road destructions" also were hampering the Germans, the daily communique said, but numerous pieces of artillery, including 25 heavy guns were captured and 12 British armored cars were declared to have been destroyed.

With the Germans at grips with New Zealand and Australian divisions in northern Thessaly, informed Germans said however, that the battle in general was going ahead according to schedule.

Berlin claimed that German troops had taken many British prisoners and considerable war material in thrusts in northern Thessaly.

MACEDONIA GAINS CLAIMED

German successes in Macedonia were said to have been greater than first anticipated. Comprehensive reports on the fight in northern Greece which resulted in capitulation of the northern Greek army and the fall of Salonika informed sources said, indicated that five Greek divisions were put out of action there.

Announcement by the high command that the remnants of the chopped-up Yugoslav army had surrendered and that fighting ceased as soon as it was proclaimed Berlin as a milestone on what Germans regard as an irresistible march to victory.

"It means more men, equipment and greater concentration of brilliant leadership for the job which lies ahead in Greece," said German observers.

As for the military outlook in Greece, a German spokesman said the best indication was the British and Greek communique themselves.

Greece's destiny "soon will be that of Serbia," he said.

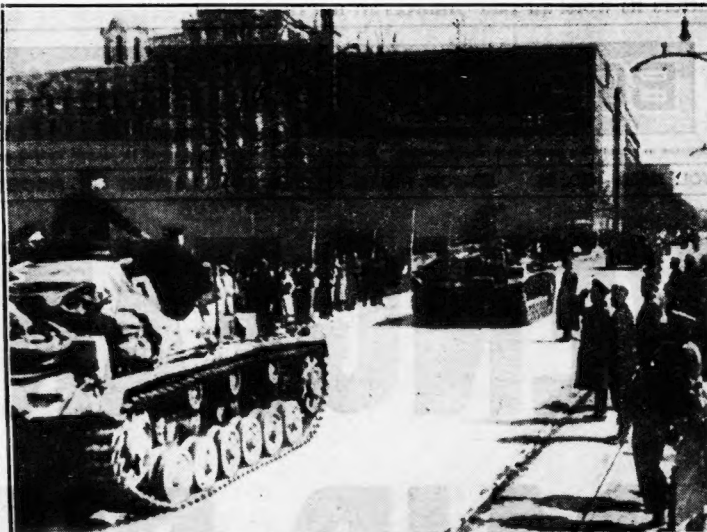

RAIL LINES WRECKED

As a military factor, the Germans declared, Yugoslavia appears to be definitely out of the war and henceforth will be of comparatively little use either to England or Germany.

Her army will be disarmed and there will be military booty of some value, they said, but it appeared that the Serbs did a pretty thorough job of crippling the country's railway system.

Many of the mountain tunnels, of which there are hundreds on the Yugoslav rail lines, were said to have been destroyed, and if therefore was doubtful what value the country might have for the Germans as a military route to Greece.

PANZER PARADE IN BELGRADE—German censor releases this photo showing Nazi Panzer units rolling through one of the main thoroughfares of Belgrade after the occupation of the Yugoslav capital. Today, Germany announced the unconditional capitulation of the remaining fighting units of the Yugoslav army and declared fighting had stopped on all Slav fronts.

BRITISH-GREEK TROOPS NARROW LINE AS NAZIS PUSH FORWARD

CAIRO, Egypt, April 18 (AP)—Greek and British forces on the northern front in Greece "are gradually withdrawing to a shorter line of defense" the middle-east headquarters announced today.

The communique said, however, that "so far the German advance in this area has been a costly one."

The withdrawal was being made, the communique said, because of increasing German pressure, with German forces getting reinforcements daily—presumably from Yugoslavia.

Authoritative circles in London today said the situation in Greece is "serious," but it was maintained that the British-Greek line had not been pierced. British troops, one source asserted, had "got the better of the Germans wherever they met on equal terms."—Editor's Note.

10 Nazi Divisions Hammer at Greece

ATHENS, April 18 (AP)—At least 10 divisions of German troops, supported by upwards of 1000 warplanes, hammered at the Allied defense lines in Greece today, meeting with particularly stubborn resistance in the vicinity of Kalabak on the hard-pressed central front.

On the east flank the Germans were reported exerting relentless pressure on British forces holding positions on the slopes of Mt. Olympus under a terrific aerial bombardment.

On the opposite flank, German troops driving down along the Greek-Albanian border confronted the Greeks with a new danger which threatened to force their complete withdrawal from Albania.

An authoritative Greek spokesman said today the "increased power of German troops" had forced the Greeks to retreat.

"The situation," he added, "is developing unfavorably."

"Uneasiness and regret regarding the military situation is justified. The struggle against two empires which was imposed on us by Germany could not last indefinitely."

Uncertainty accounts from the battle lines said columns of German soldiers, supported by screaming dive-bombers, were being hurled almost incessantly at the Hellenic defenses with great loss of life.

One report estimated Nazi losses in the Greek invasion at 50,000 dead.

ADMIT NAZI GAINS

The spokesman did not designate where the Greek retreat was occurring but the Greeks were known to be in action in the Kalabaka area and one source said the Germans had made inroads from Grevena, 25 miles north of Kalabaka, an important railroad, and 40 miles north of Trikala, center of the defense line.

The Greek high command at the same time acknowledged the loss of Kikira and Ereske, in Albania,

Fascist Killers Trail Harvard Professor

Fascist assassins have marked for murder Dr. Gaetano Salvemini, professor of government at Harvard, as an outgrowth of the Chicago slaying of John F. Arena, anti-Fascist editor, in an article in the New York Journal-American said today.

The Harvard professor, long an outspoken opponent of Fascism and Mussolini, is one of six men on a "must die" list, it was revealed by the man who says he heads that list.

He is Gaetano Salvemini, for many years head of the Italian Tourist Information office in New York, but who quit that Italian government post May 31 to go into hiding in New Jersey, after denouncing the Hitler-Mussolini pact.

ASSASSINS' LIST

Pantaleoni named as the other four anti-Fascists on the assassins' list:

MAX ASCOLI, president of the Mazzini Society of New York, the foremost anti-Fascist organization in America.

GIROLAMO VALENTI, editor of an anti-Fascist weekly newspaper.

GIUSEPPE LUPIS, publisher and managing editor of an anti-Fascist monthly.

A PROFESSOR of Italian history at a mid-Western university.

Before he was blasted to death after leaving a Chicago movie theater with a 17-year-old girl voice student, his protegee, Arena had named Pantaleoni as the "next man" in this country on an assassination list drawn up by Fascist agents.

ARENA FIRST VICTIM

As it proved, Arena himself went first.

Pantaleoni, in his New Jersey hideout, said:

"A ruthless combination of Fascists and Nazi secret agents is determined to clear the path for Axis domination of America as well as of the rest of the world. They will not hesitate to remove any obstacle, human or otherwise, from their path."

"The Nazi-Fascist fifth column in this country has a complete spy system, like the OGPU of the Communists, or the Nazi Gestapo."

8 Hub Communities Mark Patriots' Day

While Paul Revere prepared to ride again tomorrow, eight Greater Boston communities were shaping plans to participate in the traditional ceremonies which mark the 166th anniversary of the Battle of Concord.

U. S. Troops Go to Bermuda

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP)—The War Department announced today that the first contingent of troops had sailed to garrison the new base at Bermuda.

The contingent, its size not disclosed, sailed today aboard the transport American Legion from the Army Base in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Brookline alone has omitted the customary parade this year, but has arranged a veterans' escort for the Patriots' Day rider, while parades and pageants will highlight activities in other cities, including Boston.

On the signal from lanterns being hung in the belfry of the Old North Church, Lieut. Joseph F. Fraumeni of the National Lancers, impersonating Paul Revere, will begin to ride "to spread the alarm to every Middlesex village and farm."

At Elliot sq., Roxbury, old "Boston Neck," Col. Paul Welsch, playing the role of William Dawes, will start his ride which will take him through Brighton and Brookline, across the Charles river into Cambridge and then to Arlington, where he follows the Revere route.

Led by Mayor Tobin, the Boston observance starts at 9 a. m. with a flag raising at City Hall.

THE PARADE ROUTE
A parade follows along School, Washington, Winter and Tremont sts., to the Paul Revere tomb at the Granary Burying Ground. From there it continues along Tremont st. to the Dawes grave in King's Chapel Burying Ground and thence to Scollay sq. and along Hanover st. to Paul Revere mall.

There, at the new bronze statue of Revere, the exercises will be held and at 10 a. m. Paul Revere will ride away to the north.

SOMERVILLE PROGRAM

In Somerville, Mayor John M. Lynch will lead flag-raising exercises at the old police station on Bow st., while the parade is slated to start at 9 a. m. Congressman Arthur T. Healey will be main speaker at exercises in Paul Revere Park at 10:30 a. m. when Paul Revere is scheduled to arrive.

In Cambridge, a fire whistle sounding the historic 1-7-7-5 will start off a program of parades and speeches. The parade will start from Lafayette sq. at 9:45 a. m. Units of the U. S. Army will be in line along with members of the Cambridge fire department and various patriotic organizations.

DEANNA DURBIN WEDS HER FIRST LOVE TODAY

HOLLYWOOD, April 18 (AP)—Deanna Durbin, a quiet girl herself, will have a glamorous wedding tonight, with 900 guests.

"This is my first romance," she remarked, when she and Vaughn Paul, 25-year-old studio executive, joined their marriage license.

"I hope it is going to be my last."

The golden-voiced film singer of 19 also married at 8:30 p. m. in William Methodist Episcopal Church, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Willis Henn. The double-ring ceremony also used.

The smallest detail, strict rules of the big church wedding will be lax. Bridesmaids, ushers and godfathers will be in formal dress.

The wedding will be one of the so glamorous ceremonies of late years in this town. Most actors and actresses have dashed to a nearby sun — often to Arizona's Gaetana Ben at Yuma — been married in a civil ceremony, and rushed back to work.

Deanna and the only sweetheart she ever had will take a month's honeymoon. Hoping to avoid the gloom, they did not say where.

Then they will live in a Hollywood apartment until they build a six-story English cottage in Brentwood.

Deanna met Paul on the set of her first picture, Three Smart Girls, in 1936, but did not have her first date with him until two years later. Her wedding day is the 33d anniversary of her parents' marriage.

Camp Edwards Ready for Visit By Secretary of War Stimson

The military in the Bay State prepared a round of activity today for Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, scheduled to visit Camp Edwards and possibly other military camps with a flying visit to Boston slated for the afternoon.

At Ft. Devens, meanwhile, independent taxis were barred from the military reservation as the taxi-bus war threatened to tie up traffic between Ayer and the fort.

In another development on the military front, Maj.-Gen. James A. Woodruff, commanding the First Corps Area, said that seven more nurses and 52 officers were called from the reserve list and placed on active duty.

He also announced that finishing touches were being applied to an Army marketing program under which soldiers at Ft. Devens, Camp Edwards and other camps will be served seasonal fresh fruits and new vegetables.

Flying directly from Washington, Sec. Stimson was due at the Hyannis airport at 10:50 a. m., where Maj.-Gen. Roger W. Eckfeldt and Lieut.-Col. Paul Murray planned to greet him.

TO INSPECT TRAINING

After lunch with Gen. Eckfeldt in the YD mess and with brigade commanders as guests, he will inspect the training areas and firing ranges and leave the camp about 3:30 for Boston en route to the Phillips Andover Academy, of which he is president of the board of trustees.

No gun salutes or ceremony of any kind was scheduled for him at Camp Edwards.

In the taxi-bus war at Ayer, the Fitchburg & Leominster bus line, holding an agreement with Ft. Devens officials, is being hampered in attempt to maintain service with taxi operators blocking the bus firm's loading space at the station.

Cabbies, in explanation, say they are merely trying to have restrictions at the fort removed. They are not permitted to enter the fort without passengers and may not solicit fares within the fort.

CONFERENCE PLANNED

It was indicated that state officials may step into the feud and arrange a conference between Ayer selectmen, Army officials and representatives of the warring parties.

In the Army's marketing program, Frank B. Lester, for nearly 40 years a fruit and vegetable merchant, was named by Gen. Woodruff as senior marketing specialist at Boston.

He is one of 30 specialists called into service by the quartermaster corps to organize centralized procurement officers in principal cities. Lester said that in order to have a sufficient supply of fruits and vegetables on hand to start the field ration by May 1, the Boston officer will start placing orders next Monday. Written bids will be required for purchases amounting to $500, it was announced.

YOUTH ROBS GIRL CLERK IN MATTAPAN

His hand tucked sinisterly in a coat pocket, a youth held up a Mattapan branch of a North Shore cleaning concern in broad daylight today, taking $10 in company funds and the small change of the lone girl clerk.

Hysterical with fright, the clerk, Miss Phyllis Kaufman, of Nelson st., Mattapan, fled weeping to the street as soon as the gunman left, and stopped a woman passerby, who called police.

Later, Miss Kaufman told police the youth, whom she described as about 21, walked casually into the store at 1078 Blue Hill ave., pushed her into a chair and said:

"This is a stickup. Give me all your money."

The holdup is being investigated by Capt. Francis Murphy and Special Officer John F. Burke, of Station 19, who believes they know the youth.

Mother Shrieks As Attacker Is Convicted

Shrieks and cries turned Chief Justice Higgins' session of Superior Court into turmoil today when a jury's sealed verdict was read, convicting Michael Binkiewicz, 25, of Anderson st., West End, on three charges.

Binkiewicz was found guilty on charges of breaking and entering in the nighttime, assault and battery with a sharp instrument on Miss Florence Gately, Massachusetts General Hospital nurse, and assault on her with intent to commit a criminal attack.

As the verdict, reached after eight hours' deliberation, was read, Binkiewicz burst into tears and beat his hands against the cage in which he was sitting.

His mother and sister, seated in the spectators' section, also broke into loud sobbing and the mother cried:

"I'll kill myself. I'll kill myself. Please, judge, help me."

Again and again she screamed that, until court officers carried her out to an anteroom and turned her over to Katherine Joyce, a matron.

Then Binkiewicz, who has served time, according to authorities, in Lyman School, Shirley School, Concord Reformatory, the New Bedford House of Correction and State Prison, was held in $10,000.

The entrance into Miss Gately's West End apartment and the subsequent attack, during which she was stabbed three times, occurred several weeks ago.

Binkiewicz tied clothline to a vent pipe to lower himself to her window balcony, it was brought out at his trial.

FORMER BARBARA BENNETT AND MORTON DOWNEY
Estranged Couple Cross Paths in Hub Night Club

DOWNEY, WIFE MEET HERE; RECONCILIATION RUMORED

Morton Downey, stage and radio tenor, and his wife, Barbara Bennett, sister of Joan and Constance, met in a surprise midnight rendezvous at a Boston nightclub today, giving rise to speculation over possible reconciliation of the estranged couple.

Word was awaited as a result of the meeting, whether their reunion will be permanent or whether their 12-year marriage, one of Hollywood's great love affairs, will end in a divorce court.

The former "Sweethearts of Show Business" were seen together at a table in a darkened corner of the Club Mayfair. Gay sounds of music and midnight revelry formed a background for the couple's deep conversation.

RIFT ANNOUNCED

Last January, Miss Bennett unexpectedly announced their separation. No reasons were given for the decision. Soon, plans for a division of property were disclosed and an agreement was announced whereby Downey was to have custody of their five children.

The children, Michael, 11; Sean, 9; Lorelle Anna, 7; Anthony Patrick, 6, and Kevin, 5, went to the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Downey at Wallingford, Ct.

Another surprise move developed in February, when Downey filed suit in superior court at Bridgeport, Ct., for divorce from Miss Bennett, charging extreme cruelty.

3-MONTH WAIT

Under Connecticut law, a three-month period must elapse before the trial date may be set and friends of the couple speculated over whether Miss Bennett would contest the case.

When she first announced the separation, Morton rushed from New Orleans to Hollywood in a vain attempt to dissuade her. They had not been together again until their Boston meeting.

Approached by reporters, both the radio tenor and Barbara declined to comment on their plans.

Student Finds Cows Work An Eight-Hour Day

ITHACA, N. Y., April 18 (AP)—A Cornell University student sat in a pasture 24 hours and came up with the conclusion cows "work" an eight-hour day, but even then "loaf" at times.

Keith Kennedy of Vancouver, Wash., watched the actions of a pedigreed Aberdeen Angus, found Bowsy grazed eight hours, spent 12 hours lying down and the remaining four hours "standing or just walking around."

Keedy reported the cow, although capable of 90 miles of grass a minute (which she did in moments of fannish), averaged 50 to 70 bites.

2 MEN KIDNAP, ATTACK GIRL IN NEWBURY

NEWBURY, April 18—A 13-year-old high school girl was kidnapped by two men, attacked and then thrown out of an automobile last Wednesday near a heavily wooded section of West Newbury, it was revealed today.

The hysterical girl made her way to a farmhouse where she collapsed. Chief of Police Russell Noyes of West Newbury took the girl to a doctor's office and from there she was taken to her home here.

The girl told police she was walking along Central st., near her home, Wednesday afternoon, when a black car containing two men pulled up.

One man jumped out and pulled her into the car, she told Chief Noyes, and held a hand over her mouth while they drove seven miles to Newburyport and then to West Newbury. They parked the car in woods near Batchelder st., she said, and attacked her. Then they threw her out of the car and drove away.

Chief Noyes notified Chief Bart Stevens of West Newbury, and Stevens in turn got in touch with the office of District Attorney Hugh A. Cragg.

State Police Lieut. Richard F. Griffin of the district attorney's office is working on the case in cooperation with local police.

BIT OF A LARK, THIS RIDE IN BORROWED CAR

Police at headquarters had to watch their accent today after attending morning lineup, for they found they had a tendency to drop an "it" here and there and add one somewhere else.

There were two exuberant youngsters in the lineup, a lad of 19 from Liverpool and one of 20 from Glasgow, and after dodging bombs from above and torpedoes from beneath the surface of the sea, they looked upon their automobile escapade in East Boston as just a lark.

Attached to a British ship now undergoing repairs in East Boston the seamen were in a "pub" they said, when they found some keys in a key case, and found the car to which the keys belonged.

"We just took it for a ride in a spirit of fun," said the Liverpool lad.

Lieut. James V. Crowley had to smile himself, but he asked:

"Well, what would they do to you in England for that?"

"Oh, 'eavens knows. I 'aven't an idea."

He didn't know what, specifically, they would do to him in Liverpool, but he remarked with an engaging grin:

"I wish I was there now, I do."

"How many times have you been bombed going over and coming back?" asked Crowley.

The youngster's eyes lit up.

"Oh, six or seven, sir. They've 'ad us 'opping a bit."

The 20-year-old Scot told about having been in the bar and then finding the keys.

"But why did you take the car?" asked Lieut. Crowley.

"Well, we had a mind to take it, sir, mair as a lar-rk—tao try it out, sir, around the block."

Crowley asked if he had a license to drive a car in this State. It seemed that he did not.

"But I hae one to oper-r-rate one in England," he said.

Britain Beaten, Says Lindoy, at War's Start

CHICAGO, April 13 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh asserted, that "it will be a tragedy to the world—a tragedy even to Germany—if the British Empire collapses," but he opined that the "war was lost" by the Allies "even before it was declared."

He called for unity among people opposed to U. S. intervention and, in an address prepared for a rally in the Chicago Arena sponsored by the America First Committee declared that "it is not yet too late for us to save our own country from the chaos and failure of this war."

"Personally, I believe it will be a tragedy to the world—a tragedy even to Germany—if the British Empire collapses," Lindbergh said. "But I must tell you frankly that I believe this war was lost by England and France even before it was declared, and that it is not within our power in America, today, to win the war for England even though we throw the entire resources of our nation into the conflict."

SAYS U. S. AID FUTURE

"With all our organization and industry, we are not and will not be able to transport an army across the ocean large enough to invade the continent of Europe successfully as long as strong European armies are there for its defense."

Lindbergh stated that "England is in a desperate position and added:

"Up to date, she has lost every major campaign in which she has participated. Her shipping losses are of the utmost seriousness, and her cities have been devastated by bombs. Her geographical and economic position is as great a disadvantage in this age of aircraft and submarines as it was an advantage in the era of sailing ships."

He said the United States was able to defend itself against any foreign power, but held that if it was to maintain that ability "we must not expose our fleet to European war zones and we must stop sending most of our modern fighting planes abroad."

SENDING ARMS, "MISTAKE"

Lindbergh contended that, if the American Navy conveyed ships to England, American battleships would be sunk and American sailors would be killed.

He also held that sending arms to Europe was a "mistake" because it "weakened our position"—added to "bloodshed in European countries" and failed to change the "trend" of the war.

"Interventionists about that we are defeatists because we oppose jumping blindly into a war in Europe," he said. "But I ask you: whose policy has led to defeat, ours or theirs? Who have they to say about the long list of prostrate nations in Europe which, under their leadership, jumped into war hastily and unprepared?"

It was announced before Lindbergh spoke that he had become a member of the America First Committee, an organization opposed to U. S. participation in the war abroad.

Syrian Society Plans Spring Dinner Dance

The annual spring dinner-dance of the Syrian Child Welfare Society, which provides health clinics for children and vacations for indigent youngsters, will take place next Wednesday evening at the Versailles Club, Warrenton st., Boston.

Delegations from various parts of New England are expected, and the committee includes Mrs. Mon-sieur Laham, general chairman; George Selwyn, president; Theodore Hodge, treasurer; Miss Jeanette Deraney, Mrs. Thomas Hamsey, Miss Victoria Deraney, Miss Emily Moses and Crandon Samya.

Dafoe Still Gains After Operation

TORONTO, April 13 (INS)—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who underwent a major operation early this week, showed satisfactory progress today and is in no danger, his physician announced.

The nature of the ailment necessitating the operation on the Dionne quintuplets' doctor was not disclosed.

NEW RIOTING IN FORD PLANT FOUNDRY

DETROIT, April 13 (INS)—State troopers, Dearborn and Wayne County police rushed to the Ford Motor Co. Rouge plant today after reports that rioting had broken out in the foundry and that at least two persons were injured.

The Rouge plant opened last Monday after being closed for almost two weeks by a UAW-CIO strike.

UAW-CIO officials charged that two of their members had been beaten. A union spokesman further charged that between 3000 and 6000 men had come into the foundry during the night and that these men were impeding the progress of union men as the latter reported for work.

A union spokesman said the men in the foundry were not working. Officers said there were no signs of unrest outside the plant. Significantly, shortly before reports of the trouble in the foundry, R. J. Thomas, UAW-CIO president, issued a statement saying that the union has not called a new strike. "Responsibility for any stoppage of work must rest on other shoulders," Thomas said.

Camacho Pleads for Solidarity in Americas

MEXICO CITY, April 8 (INS).—President Manuel Avila Camacho made an impassioned appeal for continental solidarity, faith in the undying worth of democracy and homage to the ideals of freedom in a radio address from the National Palace marking Pan-American Day.

In a ceremony attended by U. S. Ambassador Josephus Daniels and other representatives of the 21 Pan-American nations, the President declared the anniversary of Pan-Americanism comes at a time when a new and deep emotion never felt before has cast a spell over all spirits.

Ambassador Daniels, speaking before President Camacho, paid high tribute to the American democracies, who, he said, were "making common cause for peace and liberty without losing a scintilla of their sovereignty."

President Camacho said: "The gravity of the present situation clothes what was formerly a feast of cordial friendship with a significant and austere solemnity. At it we join in homage those ideals of freedom and independence that are so essential in the lives of peoples. We realize that if they fall short of complete achievement a blemish will be cast upon the dignity of our past, that our present day inspiration will vanish and that our well founded hopes for the future will be irretrievably lost."

"The anniversary which gathers us together is doubly significant at this time. It implies that exaltation of Pan-American solidarity is, besides the formal attestation of our faith in the undying worth of democracy, a privilege so precious as to require more than ever before that we unite in their defense."

"Our republics believe, in fact, only in free and generous systems of government flowing spontaneously from the genuine will of our peoples.

"United under a reign of righteousness, we form a solid block whose power is wholly devoted to the promotion of concord."

"The Americas are a haven where man's most distinguished ideals find refuge. On their shores the spirit of equality, trust in the law and the right, resistance of the imposition of brute force, the certainty of culture and capacity to redeem our deeply-rooted love of liberty all have their abode.

"We express Mexico's firm resolve to dwell in closest unity with other peoples of our continent. Our nation is confident that in these tragic and trying days American solidarity will rise up

In all its might as an unconquerable reality upholding the sway of brotherhood of nations and justice."

COAL CRISIS THREATENS TO SHUT DOWN N. E. PLANTS; MAINE HAS ONLY 2-WEEKS' SUPPLY

Fearing serious effects to Bay State and New England industry unless the bituminous coal strike is settled, Gov. Saltonstall's defense board today was making a survey to determine how much coal is on hand and how long the present supply will last.

Although the situation in Massachusetts was said not to be acute at this time, it will become so in the next few weeks unless the coal strike is settled. Other New England states were reported facing hazardous curtailments as a result of the growing coal shortage.

In Maine, Frank E. Southward, state fuel administrator, advised Director-General William B. Knudson of OFM that "Maine now has not more than a two-weeks' supply of soft coal."

"Mills and factories engaged in defense orders are getting greatly worried," Southward wired Knudson.

"Maine coal dealers can offer no encouragement regarding future supplies as long as the strike continues," he added. "It is absolutely imperative that this strike be settled and men put back to work this week, or completion of defense orders by Maine concerns will be in a most hazardous situation. Some of these will be unable to operate."

Officials pointed out that the shortage would become gravely acute in all of the six New England states unless the strike is settled within the next two weeks. They pointed out that even after the miners return to work, it will take at least one week to get coal shipments into New England.

It was also predicted that if large numbers of dealers in the six states turned to rail shipments to replace the depleted stocks, there would not be sufficient railroad cars available to relieve the emergency for some time.

"TO NEGLECT DEFENSE IS TO INVITE DISASTER"

Forward March!

A message to General Motors folks everywhere

RECENT events have made it shockingly clear our country faces a peril that threatens to engulf all that we have and hold dear.

That peril is known. We need not define it. But we do need to define the obligation which it places upon the shoulders of every one of us.

That obligation is first of all to get done as fast as can be the vast defense task upon which the nation is engaged, and to stick at it regardless until we do get it done.

In assuming its share of that task, General Motors has in good faith taken responsibility for the production of defense orders totaling about $750,000,000.

It has done this with confidence in the loyal cooperation of its employees, and has undertaken to spread production as widely as possible for the local benefit of cities where its plants are located.

The millions of people fighting for freedom throughout the world look to America as the arsenal of Democracy. They pin their hope on America's productive power. And our machines are futile without the willing hands of men to run them.

In this crisis, every hour counts. Every hour moves us closer to the day when defense materials will flow to our embattled friends in Europe in volume enough to swing the scale.

This is no time to falter, to hesitate, to let our effort be weakened or encumbered by differences which can be settled in discussion by reasonable men.

At a time when your country is asking for sacrifice, can anyone justify seeking selfish advantage at the cost of production?

Certainly General Motors wants no special advantage of any kind.

It seeks only to go ahead now with its duty to the free people of America and the free people of the world.

We all hope our country shall never itself need to wield the weapons we are building and will build in increasing volume.

But the best assurance against this is for us to go forward as Americans who stand inseparably together in order to get this defense job done.

For the defense of our country, an idle or even an inefficient factory is today no better than a bombed one.

NEW TYPE BRITISH BOMBS BLAST AT BERLIN

the 30th of the war and the first since the recent RAF raid that blasted the German capital's State Opera and Prussian State Library and damaged other landmarks up and down the Unter den Linden.

While the British hammered Berlin, officials revealed, German raiders last night concentrated chiefly on Portsmouth, British south coast seaport and naval base.

NOT "REVENGE" RAID

There was no hint that the British raid on Berlin was in the nature of a "revenge" attack on the German capital's civilian population—even though demands for revenge had gone from London's bomb-blasted population.

In fact, British authorities maintained that the RAF would soon descend to the "barbarity" of the Germans.

Nevertheless, it may be that the long-distance aerial "battle of London and Berlin" is now entering a new stage of warfare.

Here in London the work of reconstruction after Wednesday night's mass air assault—heaviest London has suffered since the war began—continued through last night and this morning.

Rescue workers were still digging into debris for bodies, and morgues and hospitals were filled to capacity with the dead, dying and injured.

Even as this grim task progressed, German raiders returned last night.

London experienced two new air raid alarms—54th and 54th of the war. The first began at 1:30 a. m. and ended half an hour later without incident. The second commenced at 3:30 a. m. and cleared shortly before 5 a. m.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

London escaped bombs this time but other regions were attacked, although casualties and damage were described as light. One Nazi raider was shot down in flames.

A procession of Nazi raiders attacked sections of southern England for several hours, dropping flares, fire bombs and explosives. Other German bombers scattered explosives over various rural districts along the east coast, while RAF fighters barred them in the night sky.

Portsmouth Pounded

By Nazi Bombers

PORTSMOUTH, England, April 13 (AP)—German planes bombed this important south coast naval base for several hours during the night.

A procession of raiders took part in the attack, which was the heaviest of the night in Britain.

The German planes began coming over shortly after dark and kept up the assault for several hours.

High explosives did damage in various parts of the city, but British said casualties were remarkably light.

One heavy high explosive bomb crashed into a church hall from which many persons had hastened to seek shelter just a few minutes previously.

The only casualty in this incident was an air raid precautions warden. He was picked up, seriously hurt, on the edge of a bomb crater which was rapidly filling with water.

Houses were wrecked in many sections of the city, trapping residents under debris.

At the height of the attack the raiders, in the light of their own flares, dived through low clouds to empty their bomb racks, but a persistent and heavy anti-aircraft barrage forced some of them out to sea where they were attacked by British fighting planes.

Besides the tons of bombs dropped on the city, others showered the surrounding countryside.

Berlin Admits Bombs

Hit Many Buildings

BERLIN, April 13 (AP)—"Stronger forces" of the RAF than ever before used against Berlin penetrated the barrage belt to the center of the German capital last night in a bombing attack.

The high command said the RAF had disregarded the warning Germany conveyed night before last in the Luftwaffe's unequalled "retaliatory" raid on London.

Authorized sources said the Prussian State Library, already undergoing repairs as a result of the RAF raid on the night of April 9, again was damaged by a hit from an incendiary bomb.

Three other "public buildings" and "about 10 apartment houses" were damaged, the high command said, minimizing casualties. Damage in other regions of the Reich was declared slight.

Six of the British night raiders were reported shot down.

PORTSMOUTH BOMBED

"Despite the warning which the German air force made night before last by a tremendous retaliatory attack on London, stronger forces again penetrated as far as Berlin's outer anti-aircraft barrage," said the daily communique, adding that "single planes succeeded in pushing through the fire belt to the city center."

Another strong blow at the British south naval base at Portsmouth, the high command said, and heavy damage was declared done to the harbor area and docks with high explosives and incendiaries.

CONVOY ATTACKED

The German raid on Portsmouth was said to have started large conflagrations among government docks, naval repair shops and arsenals.

DNE, official German news agency said Nazi planes scored two direct hits on a 7000-ton vessel in a heavily-protected convoy northwest of Ireland. The loss of the ship was assumed, the agency said, following observation of an explosion and heavy smoke clouds.

In addition, DNE said, a 2000-ton freighter off the east coast of England was hit twice by air bombs and sank in a few moments.

76 Killed in Blast

By RAF, Vichy Says

VICHY, France, April 13 (AP)—The French information office announced today that 76 persons were killed and 50 wounded in a recent night RAF bombardment of Brest and the casualty list was still incomplete.

It was reported that the British planes, starting at 11:30 p. m. and bombing the port continuously until 1 a. m., the night of April 14-15. The information office said the bombing was "the most terrible Brest has known" and said rescue squads still were working to uncover victims.

A civil hospital was demolished, but no other particulars of the material damage were disclosed. The British said the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have been sheltering at Brest.

Brest, the base of the French fleet before the armistice, is considered by the British one of the principal German "embarkation" ports for the threatened invasion of England and has been the target of many RAF assaults.

The Vichy regime had been silent on the bombings of occupied France until it reported the April 12 attack which resulted in the death of 15 North African prisoners at Camp Souges. The next day came the bombardment of Bordeaux, where 25 buildings were demolished.

Mayor Adrien Marquet of Bordeaux has asked United States Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy to intervene with Britain to halt such bombings as the one of the Souges camp.

LADY BLANCHE ANSON KILLED IN AIR RAID

LONDON, April 13 (AP)—Death, result of "enemy action," pending of Lady Blanche Anson, wife of a British air raid, was announced today. Lieut. Col. Sir George Anson, an ally.

By EDWARD KENNEDY
WITH BRITISH FORCES ON THE GREEK WAR-FRONT, April 18 (AP)—German forces smothered ceaselessly at the Greek and Polish defense line suffered enormous losses—some estimates placing the number of their dead in the Greek invasion at 50,000.

But although Nazi bodies are piled high, Adolf Hitler's high command continues to send seemingly inexhaustible divisions of powerfully armed men into the assault. Column after column of German troops, supported by dive-bombers, is being hurled against the Greek-British defense lines.

The situation is serious but not hopeless, military authorities said. For the past six days, British, Australian and New Zealand troops have met incessant attacks along the Mount Olympus line (east flank of the defense barrier) and when I left there at noon today they still were holding.

To the west, the Germans made some inroads from Grevena against Greeks fighting with inadequate equipment. I was told steps had been taken to prevent this drive from cutting off the British from behind.

Large troop movements were going on behind the front as the Allies sought to bolster defense positions and rectify the line if necessary.

German prisoners were being brought back in trucks.

German numerical superiority in the air is even greater than on the ground. Divisions of dive-bombers constantly harassing the defenses apparently constitute the German solution to the problem presented by the reduced efficiency of panzer divisions in mountainous country.

At Larissa, already abandoned by an earthquake and abandoned by the civil population, I saw 40 planes swoop low again and again, first bombing and then machine-gunning.

Larissa today is a ghastly parody of a city.

A famous British Hussar regiment resisted to the last round in a pass.

"After a tank attack, the Germans sent their infantry up the hill four deep," an officer told me. "We mowed down the first three rows but ran out of bullets when the fourth came."

Italian Divisions Near Porto Edda

ROME, April 18 (AP)—Italian divisions advancing without rest against the Greeks are within sight of Porto Edda, the Albanian port formerly known as Santi Quaranta but which was renamed for Mussolini's daughter, the official Italian news agency reported today.

Port Edda is the last Albanian port held by the Greeks who occupied it Dec. 6.

Femet, Argirocastro and Porto Palesmo also have been recaptured by the Italians driving the Greeks back in disorder, the high command said.

Arrival of Fascist troops at Dubrovnik, coming from both north and south also completed occupation of Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, the high command indicated.

Femet fell to the Greek forces last Dec. 4 and they took the important city of Argirocastro four days later. The two towns are in southern Albania only about 10 miles from the Greek-Albanian border. (Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, is about 75 miles up the coast from the northern border of Albania.)—Editor's note.

Earlier Italian dispatches said the Greek army retreating from Kilina, Albania, was in grave peril of being cut off by an Italian column pushing toward Berat on the Greek-Albanian border.

Fascist Killers Trail Professor

I have told the Dies committee and the FBI that.

"We told no one except my son, who lives in Delaware, where we were going. We took every precaution, or thought we did, to cover our tracks."

"And yet, only a few days ago, I received through the mail a little booklet—no, not Italian, not Fascist, but Nazi propaganda."

"My name, my address—this address that I thought no one knew; that I thought I had so cleverly concealed. But THEY knew it. I am on their mailing list."

"Diabolically clever, eh? A diabolically clever hint—or warning, shall I say?—that they knew where I am and can lay their hands on me any time."

Prof. Salvemini, named by Pantalone on the "death list," has been one of America's most bitter denunciations to Mussolini and Fascist principles.

Once, in 1925, he was imprisoned in Italy on a treason charge, without trial, on an accusation that he participated in one of the clandestine newspapers published throughout Italy by anti-Fascists.

In that same year he was released but was forced to leave the country. Since then he has been teaching at Harvard.

As far back as February, 1940, he portrayed Mussolini as "district leader" for Hitler in Italy, and charged that the Italian premier was completely subservient to Hitler.

Last December, Prof. Salvemini predicted the Nazis would overrun Italy within a few months and that then a separate peace between Italy and Britain would become impossible, because Hitler would not allow it.

BRITISH NAVY RAINS SHELLS INTO LIBYA

CAIRO, Egypt, April 18 (AP)—British warships are continuing to pump hundreds of tons of shells into Axis positions west of Salum.

Experienced outpost just across the border from Libya where land fighting is raging between the British and Italian and German advance units.

The shelling started 48 hours ago and helped put the brakes on the Axis advance across the western desert, military authorities reported today.

Long columns of Axis motor transport were declared destroyed by the British men-o-war, which moved close inshore and kept up the attack despite frequent Axis air attacks.

Particularly heavy casualties were inflicted by the British on Axis convoys in the desert, having the escape route west of Salum.

In Berlin the German high command declared that German and Italian troops "repelled several enemy attacks on Salum."

Editor's note.

Close to the British Mediterranean fleet operating west of Tripoli, where a British force is battling repeated Axis assaults, declared a terrific blasting against the Axis at El Agheila. At least five planes in the ground were said to have been destroyed and huge craters torn in the air field.

The naval bombardments were declared to have resulted much to the force of the Axis drive, which has pushed the British back nearly 400 miles from El Agheila, advance point of their westward strike across Libya.

Italian troops in Ethiopia, commanded by the Duke of Aosta, were reported still resisting persistent pressure of British forces.

EIRE'S PEACE STAND FIRM, SAYS ENVOY

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1941

Eire's Minister of Defense Gen. Frank Aiken was headed for Philadelphia today after telling a cheering Symphony Hall crowd that Ireland will stick to her neutral position and will fight only to protect her rights.

Gen Aiken

Gen. Aiken, scheduled to talk in the Quaker city as part of a nation-wide tour, told his Boston audience that neither economic pressure, military threats nor promises of an Irish "thrust" would cause Eire to abandon its neutrality stand.

"We have learned a little wisdom in the hard school of experience and if we fight in this war it will be only when we are attacked," he said.

Stating his mission to this country is to purchase from the government ships, arms and supplies to "make the defense of Ireland more effective," Aiken was wildly cheered when he added:

"Let any of you have any doubt about our attitude on the matter, however, let me say our and for all, the sovereign rights of the Irish people will not be hartered for food or ships or arms or any other consideration whatsoever."

MUST SAVE IRISH UNITY

"The Irish people took their decision at the outset of the war. It was for peace. The Irish people are united as never before upon the policy of neutrality, and we will not destroy Irish unity and thus our ability to resist aggression from any quarter by declaring war or by taking any step towards war against any side. And that goes for giving or leasing our ports or any other plan which would project our people into war."

During the day Aiken had a private audience with Cardinal O'Connell and also conferred with Gov. Saltonstall at the State House.

At a luncheon tendered him at the Copley-Plaza by Mayor Tobin, Aiken said all Eire wants is "the right of self determination which belongs to every free nation."

"All we want is to be belligerent forces as into the war against our will. We will insist upon the right to decide whether or not we enter the war and we will defend our country to the utmost if challenged by either side."

MANY LEADERS PRESENT

Among those present were the Rev. John J. Murphy, S. J., president of Boston College; Brendan O'Riordan, consul for Eire in Boston; President Angier L. Goodwin of the Senate; J. Wells Farley, secretary of the Mass. Com. on Public Safety, representing Gov. Saltonstall; Eugene Sheehan of the Irish Neutrality League; Shaun Muran, secretary to the High Commissioner of Ireland, former Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever; Dist. Atty. William J. Foley; former Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield; Jeffrey Murphy.

16 Mayor Tobin Protests Against Delay in El Passenger Count

Mayor Tobin joined the controversy over affairs of the Boston Elevated today with a protest against delay in making the annual count of passengers to determine proportionate shares of the lines deficit among the 14 cities and towns served.

The mayor contended that if the count is put off until summer Boston would suffer, since figures would show the usual drop off in commuters in outlying districts and the city would be given a greater share of the deficit than would be the case if the count is held now.

Even the present count system is unfair to Boston City Councilor Maurice H. Sullivan of Brighton argued, because persons returning to adjoining communities are counted as Boston passengers when they board a car in town.

Meanwhile, the annual deficit reported this year by the trustees as $2,341,167 will not be paid by State Treasurer William E. Hurley at least until Atty-Gen. Robert T. Bushnell has ruled on a request of municipal officials for a public accounting of the road's finances.

"In view of the fact that the governor has asked Atty-Gen. Bushnell for a ruling on this matter, I will not follow the usual custom of borrowing the amount at once," said Treasurer

Hurley.

"I have advised the governor that I will defer action until payment has been approved by the governor and council."

In his reply Gov. Saltonstall said: "It is my suggestion, in the light of these circumstances, that you should not at this time borrow this money."

The deficit certified by the public trustees was about 14 per cent, or $383,512.58 less than that claimed for the previous year of $2,724,679.87, due to "increased passenger revenue," it was stated.

18 Jim Roosevelt Back With Marine Corps
 SAN FRANCISCO, April 18 (AP)—James Roosevelt, a captain in the Marine Corps, has returned to active duty after a leave during which he was married to Romelle Schneider.
 Capt. Roosevelt and his bride arrived from Los Angeles yesterday. He said he was on duty again with orders to report to Brig.-Gen. Charles F. B. Price. He declined comment on reports he would be sent to Hongkong.

F.D. Opposes Sales Tax to Aid Defense

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt asserted today he did not have the faintest idea how $3,500,000,000 in taxes ought to be raised, but he indicated he still did not like the idea of a sales tax.

Administration officials and congressional leaders of both parties agreed yesterday on a huge program to raise $3,500,000,000 in new revenue next fiscal year to bring government income up to two-thirds of expenditures.

The manner of obtaining the money and the exploration of sources, the President said, is for the determination of the House Ways and Means Committee. Asked what his feelings was on a sales tax, Mr. Roosevelt said it was the same as always.

"That means you do not care for it?" he was asked.

Not very much, he replied. Mr. Roosevelt said he expected to make a public statement on the tax problem soon but had not decided how or when.

Specific details of the plan to raise $3,500,000,000 in new revenues remained to be disclosed, but all signs indicated that higher income and excise taxes, new sales levies and possibly a tax on wages would dig into the pocketbooks of both the rich and the poor as never before in America.

Treasury experts worked at top speed to whip details into shape for submission to Congress next week. The plan will be presented to the House Ways and Means Committee by Secretary Morgenthau at a date yet to be fixed exactly.

But before that the broad outlines and possibly some of the concrete tax proposals may be given by President Roosevelt in a radio speech or other message to the nation.

The President, it was believed, also will emphasize the necessity for meeting about two-thirds of the vast cost of American rearmament aid to Britain and other federal expenses on a cash basis.

The two-thirds cash, one-third borrowing formula was first disclosed yesterday by Secretary Morgenthau in announcing the total of new revenues to be raised.

ENTHUSIASTIC RESPONSE
 Initial reactions at the capitol were enthusiastically favorable to the proposal, generally conforming with the view expressed by Senator Clark (D.) of Missouri, a member of the Senate Finance Committee that "We've done the appropriating and now we've got to pay the freight."

Republicans and Democrats alike said the full $3,500,000,000 or more if possible—should be raised.

To attain that end, one authority reported, Treasury and congressional tax experts were considering levies on "everything, including the kitchen sink."

Down-the-line boosts of 25 to 50 per cent in all present taxes were confidently predicted along with many new excise levies on such varied items as soda pop and washing machines.

OTHER RISKS DUE
 Individual taxpayers who now pay rates starting at 44 per cent on income above $800, if single, and $2000, if married, appeared to be in for stiff increases.

Corresponding rises were indicated in the present 24 per cent corporation income tax, and in excess profits and excise levies. There was also talk that the $800 and $2000 exemptions might be drastically lowered to bring in millions of new taxpayers.

DR. F. M. EDWARDS' DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

Benefits Nation of Sufferers!

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years Dr. F. M. Edwards (widely known physician) successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Test their goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

DAFFODILS MAKE LONDON FORGET RAID

LONDON, April 18 (AP)—Battered by Wednesday night's worst air raid, but still buoyant, the central and west end of London blossomed today with a new crop of daffodils and "business as usual" signs.

The only shops not open were those wrecked. Behind shattered windows, clerks were busy with customers who thronged the streets in as great numbers as ever.

Many streets closed to traffic yesterday were open today, with the movement of all kinds of vehicles brisk. Carpenters were everywhere through the blasted districts, fitting small "air raid" windows to damaged shops. Some of the more optimistic proprietors were having full plate glass windows installed.

While smoke clouds still hung over the city the daffodil season arrived, causing considerable excitement.

At one market retailers elbowed one another from dawn to midday, unmindful of a nearby sign:

"Danger. Unexploded bombs."

"Business," said one weary salesman. "Why, its excellent. Good as last year, I would say."

Sidestepping wreckage, hundreds of Londoners paused to buy bunches of the gay yellow flowers. Crowds paid to attend the annual daffodil exhibition and gaze at prize specimens.

WHEN BUYING FURNITURE . .

Of course you'll choose styles and colors that harmonize, but remember . . . lasting value depends upon HIDDEN QUALITY.

Every bride should ask about the hidden qualities when she buys her furniture. For in home furnishings it's the things you can't see that insure lasting beauty and comfort.

At Kanes you'll find MASTERBILT Furniture. Look for the Masterbilt Seal, it assures you of superb styling—correct color harmony—plus the unparalleled hidden sturdiness of Masterbilt construction.

Doris Duke Denies Reconciliation Plan

LOS ANGELES, April 18 (INS)—Denying a reconciliation with her estranged husband, James H. R. Cromwell, is in the offing, Doris Duke Cromwell, tobacco heiress, arrived here by clipper plane from Hawaii.

"I do not expect to see Mr. Cromwell while I am in the East," she said. "As for myself, I have no plans for it or, if it comes at all, it will come much later."

GOODWIN HITS MERIT RATING INSURANCE

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin today attacked a bill providing for merit rating compulsory auto insurance, scheduled for hearing Monday before the legislative committee on insurance.

Under the measure insurance companies would decide what persons may register motor cars.

Goodwin said:

"This bill still retains the compulsory insurance law, but takes from the State insurance commissioner the right to fix the rates and turns it over to the insurance companies. In other words, the law will, in effect, compel every owner of a car to buy insurance, and will leave it to the insurance companies to fix the charge.

"This bill is sponsored by the Boston Automobile Club as a front for the insurance interests."

LEGION POST HITS WELLES RADIO SHOW

Special to Boston American
CHICAGO, April 18—A strong resolution denouncing Orson Welles' Free Company radio broadcasts was unanimously adopted here at a meeting of the second district of the Cook County Coun-

BLONDIE

—And Washington Was Father of His Country!

THE DAY that was Emily Every's 48th birthday and the twenty-first anniversary of her wedding to Mike didn't promise a thing from the moment she opened one swollen eye and pointed at Mike's small form making a C as he lay curled up in the bed beside her.

A quick check-up of the interior of her person told her that she was going to have some trouble with what she called her "neurology." Her face ached. The big toe on her left foot was letting her know it was there, too, and there was a jump in the middle of her stomach. She guessed she didn't feel so good. And she guessed she shouldn't have eaten so much of that corned beef and cabbage the night before.

She swung her arm down and picked up the alarm clock which rested on the floor below her. She brought the arm up and glanced at the dial on the end of it. It was a quarter to eight! She remembered now that the alarm had gone off at 7 and that she had reached down, half asleep, and turned it off, figuring that she would get in a couple more minutes. And she had fallen asleep again—more big toe and all—to the floor, she heaved herself up and reached for her kimono. That was bad. Early in her married life she had learned that Mike didn't like to see her in a kimono in the morning. He liked to see her completely dressed. A woman that gets in the habit of laying around in a kimono," he had pointed out, "has a good chance of ending up a slob." But there wasn't anything she could do today. If she didn't step on it, Mike would be late for the office and if he was late, she would hear about it—plenty.

As the kimono sailed around her, she got a quick glimpse of herself in the dresser mirror. Her hair was frizzy and the grey was very prominent. Give her five minutes with a comb and she could make it all blonde. But she didn't have five minutes. And she was getting heavier and showing it. Mike didn't like heavy women. He was only a little taller than a half-pint himself. Maybe that was the reason.

She was moving fast now. She thrust her feet into a pair of house slippers and made for the stairs. They lived in one of a row of two-story cottages. There were two bedrooms upstairs and a bathroom and a couple of closets. Down-

He was amazing. You'd think he'd never said what he had said when he woke up. You wouldn't think he'd fight at the drop of a hat. He was a little man and thin. His eyes were gentle but his nose was sharp and his lips were thin. Many the big bully had stepped on him and found himself sitting on the curb nursing a bloody nose. Sometimes, Emily wished he was gentler.

"Mike," she asked, "do you know what day this is?"

A WELCOME KISS

"Day?" he repeated around a mouthful of egg, "sure it's Wednesday. It's the first of the month. I got plenty to do. He was a bookkeeper for the Wrightman Lead people. "I got to hustle." He got up from the table and into the overcoat she held for him. He took his hat from her hand and his brief case from the table. "So long," he said and then stopped suddenly and kissed her on the cheek.

That about floored her. She shut the front door behind him and sat down to cry. He'd kissed her and Mike wasn't sentimental. He hadn't kissed her for six months. She guessed he loved her and wasn't she, she sobbed.

She looked up from her handkerchief at the house next door and saw for the first time that her neighbors were moving. Drying her eyes, she moved her chair nearer the window and a little to the side. Their name was Tramarand. There was a man and a woman and two daughters. One was in her other in her late teens. The father was a musician. He had pupils. He came home drunk once in a while. They kept to themselves. That's all Emily knew about them, although they had lived next door for a year.

If it wasn't for Mike, she'd know all about them. But Mike didn't like her to mix with people. He forbade it. That is why she had to pretend she didn't know the grocer and the butcher and that is why it was so embarrassing when they greeted her intimately whenever she came into the stores with Mike.

They had good reason to because when she stopped in the morning, she talked their ears off and listened to what they said. That is how she got so much gossip.

The movers must have been at it for a long time because they were taking their last load. The mother and the two girls got into their flivver and drove away behind the van.

Emily at once ran up into a fever of curiosity. Where were they moving to? Why had they moved? How was the oldest girl coming along with that steady of hers? Emily knew about the steady because she had been steady since she was a girl. She had gotten up and lit the hall light and looked out the window. She saw the girl and the man standing on the porch next door. They were kissing each other. She kept on watching but they didn't kiss any more.

The next night, Mike had bawled her out for "snooping." It had been a long scolding. Ending it, he had said, "I know all women are snoopers but when you have to snoop, don't do it with a light behind you. Old man Tramarand told me his daughter caught you peeping last night."

ON THE TRAIL

Where had the Tramarands moved to? The question ate on her and her fever mounted. She dressed and went down to the neighborhood center. She asked the butcher, the grocer, the druggist and the newsstand man. Nobody knew. As the day wore on, the question nagged her. At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, she telephoned the real estate agent who rented this block of houses.

"This," she said in an awestruck voice at Park ave, but which sounded like nothing ever heard before on land or sea, "is Mrs. Peckinpach. I wish to get in touch with Prof. Tramarand as my little boy wants to take violin lessons. I have been to No. 4388A Virginia ave. and they have moved. Can you give me their new address?"

"They didn't leave any," the girl at the switchboard told her.

"But—ha, ha—why did they move?"

"I don't know." The telephone clicked down.

A wave of melancholy swept over Emily. Sitting at the telephone table, she reviewed her life. It was unhappy and futile. She and Mike had had no children, though they both had wanted them. Mike wasn't as sweet and gentle as any of the heroes she had seen in the movies. What would she be in 10 years? What was the use of going on? Where did the Tramarands move to? And why did they move?

As the day wore on, her depression deepened. Her "neurology" increased and her big toe started throbbing. She moved around, getting Mike's dinner ready, crying bitter tears.

He came in at 6 o'clock so cheerful that she could have killed him.

"When do we eat and what?" he demanded. Never a word of their anniversary. She thought of prodding his memory but she knew it wouldn't do any good. He'd probably bawl her out.

He sat down at the table and pulled at his brief case. It came open. He pulled out an awkward tissue-covered package and then an oblong one.

"Hey, Emily," he said, "happy birthday and happy anniversary. Here's some roses and here's some candy. Eat hearty. Then we'll go to the movies tonight. Tyrone Power. Hey, did you know the Tramarands moved? Yes, over to Brooklyn. Tramarand got a steady job. A three-piece orchestra over there. He told me tonight."

Suddenly, the world was all right. Everything in it was all right. She had a good life. She had a good husband. She had everything she wanted.

"Mike," she said, "you're wonderful."

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1941

ON TROOPSHIP CONVOY TO ENGLAND (Seventh Day Out)—The seaweed telegraph system on board the Dutchman says that a Nazi submarine is trailing the convoy "at a discreet distance," waiting to fire a load of havoc into one or more of the transports.

This is strictly the vaporings of prankish imagination. For the veteran seamen of Halifax testify that the "submarine-chase" fable is a standard gag of every voyage, an adult-version of the childhood bogie.

For common-sense dictates that no sub with a 14-knot surface and eight-knot undersea speed could catch a 17 to 22-knot convoy such as ours. They would have to lie waiting in the shipping lanes with their sensitive sound detectors picking up the oscillations of our engines and pot us as we go by.

In late afternoon today the convoy was reinforced by four destroyers, lean, gray, whippet boats which may have missed connections at the original rendezvous and forced the cruiser to double back and poke around the ocean for several hours. The convoy went on.

INTERLOPER ARRIVES

While the warship was gone a curious thing happened! A tramp freighter with a smutty hull and orange superstructure steamed up at an angle and attached itself to the rear rank of the convoy, making surprising speed for such a dingy, dilapidated tub. She just muzzled in impudently and whooshed along like a hobo at a garden party while the officers on the transport bridges peered anxiously through glasses, like social dowagers scanning an interloper through lornettes.

The gun crews of the five ships swivelled their pieces at the stranger, fed live, four-inch shells into their gun breeches and waited for the first overt act. Our signalman ran up colored flags at the forepeak, asking in international code, "What ship?" The intruder, with a Swedish ensign, answered amicably enough and continued to turn on. It was like some seedy stranger horning into select supercilious society and saying:

STRANGER JOINS CONVOY — "A tramp freighter with a smutty hull and orange superstructure steamed up at an angle and attached herself to the rear of the convoy . . . Gun crews of the five ships swivelled their pieces at the stranger, fed live, four-inch shells into their gun breeches . . ."

"Lovely weather, eh wot?" After a while the cruiser's fighting post showed, and then the stubby funnels of the four destroyers, bringing a concerted sigh of relief to the troops gathered along the after rails. On came the escort like a mastiff leading a pack of beagles, full speed at the tramp. The papa-ship came with its steel chin puffed out and a business-like gleam in its heliograph eye. Who'll was this flitting with his personal harem?

"G'WAY, GRUB OFF" For a full ten minutes the cruiser scrutinized the convoy crasher, inspecting her hull for suspicious hinges, her plates for false bulkheads, until, finally satisfied, it signalled to glissade past off about her business.

From one angle it was a bit pathetic as the tramp skipper dropped astern with a marine pout and limped a way—wherefore, no doubt, at failing to tramp a side behind such ample protection. Yet the duty of this escort is to deliver the troops and not to conduct hitchhiking strangers to port.

The destroyers were busy little vessels which nest poking thither and yon like hunting hounds sniffling among the German hedgehogs for Nazi fox scents. They scooted off at tangents or spread out fanwise, or cut capers on the flanks. Along their after decks were rows of the familiar sub-con depth bombs which are supposed to blow the seams off a submarine at a radius of 200 yards.

DANGER AHEAD

The fleet turned sharply now as evening fell and headed on the final critical swoop to its British haven. This was IT! Tonight the troops would sleep in their uniforms, alert for a warning blast of the ship's whistles and ready to grab shoes, life belts and reefers.

The early hours of dawn for the next few days would be the dangerous moments—that first early glimmer of light when transport lookouts cannot see a thin pipe-like periscope poke out of the wintry waters, but when the astute commander can plainly measure the black silhouettes of the ships. Already clocks have been moved two hours ahead of sundown to give the convoy a false time schedule, the better to rout the men out of bed before dawn's hour.

A flurry of snow shut down an opaque screen at twilight, giving the neighboring ships the appearance of gray ghosts. But that passed quickly and we went on in an oily sea—nasty looking stuff to get dumped in, those growing combers with fleecy crowns and swirling inky hollows and spume-spattered valleys. Life and the placid pursuits of peacetime seemed doubly sweet as we on deck surveyed the menace of the waters. Silly business, War!

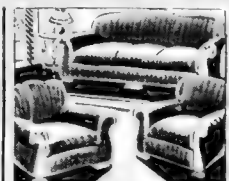

In the earlier evening we had passed a half-submerged, shattered life boat awash to its gunwales and stove in at the bow. A destroyer hovered briefly to have a look at the surrounding waters, but there was nothing but the empty boat to hint at whatever tragedy had been enacted on the spot.

We were going full speed now with the engines pulsing like giant heart throats and the Dutchman's woodwork chattering—every ounce of compression that our Diesels could produce. Somewhere yonder in the night lay the Nazi-held coast and somewhere lay England. Both were near at hand.

AUSTEN LAKE DESCRIBES AIR BOMBING HAVOC IN LONDON

formation and the toll is seldom tabulated in the public prints.

But "worst ever" has an ominous ring. "Worst" means something more disastrous than the mile wide reaches of the Old City where buildings are empty hulks, shored up or left as shells. "Worst" means the appearance of Pater Noster Row, the ancient booksellers' region, hard by St. Paul's Cathedral, where nothing but acres of brick dust of the consistency of talcum powder remain of that once-fascinating neighborhood of elms, nooks and crannies.

"Worst" means a replica of the seamed and slanting Temple Bar law offices where time-stained buildings, much like the Harvard yard in appearance, lurch drunkenly and gape, roofless, open to the skies.

Today, as London counts its newest scars, there are undoubtedly duplicates of St. Thomas's Hospital, across from Parliament, a mammoth building that was once the world's largest hospital and now is a hollow rim of charred walls without floors or interior, a mass of rubble and twisted metal.

Or the blackened region of Blackfriars, where on the night of the September Sunday "Blitz," that previous "worst" in the war's record, some 10,000 individual fires swept an area larger than that destroyed in the original London holocaust.

Today London's salvage squads, including many of the locally stationed pioneer regiments, are busy sorting more ruins and setting aside piles of usable material with which, at some future date, London will be rebuilt.

Hundreds of thousands of tons of steel have been saved to be melted into munitions or made into ship bottoms. For London hides its scars quickly and doesn't brood on its damage, effecting quick order and leaving the shells and hulks to stand as they are.

Heavy Life Toll

Undoubtedly, too, there has been a heavy toll of life in this last bombing, for reports say that Nazi planes carried lethal eggs of the heaviest calibre, 1000 and 2000 pounders similar to those dropped on the subway station opposite Lloyd's office, causing a crater 60 feet deep and radiating 50 yards. Two hundred and fifty-six persons died with that single explosion last autumn, including whole families who had sought refuge in the deep subway tubes.

Another such land mine, floating down by parachute, wiped out an entire department store on Oxford street, leaving a mound of rubbish that stood two stories high and was unrecognizable from its original form. Still another cleaned out the heart of a tenement near St. Mary le Bow—the famous church of the Bow-bells, where tradition says every true Cockney must be born within the sound of its chimes. Bowbells, like some 2000 other London churches, is merely a hollow ghost of its former self.

What a blitz like Wednesday means to the telephone, water, gas and sewage systems is tremendous, sometimes paralyzing whole regions of the city and leaving it isolated without light, communications or heat. Thus today utility squads are working the clock around to restore ordinary livabilities and to make their locations habitable. Sanitary squads are disinfecting homes and office buildings, trusting to prevent the start of a plague that has been so feared during the winter. Commissary officers are supplying bombed-out families with food and housing officers are finding them temporary shelter.

Fiendish Effect

Such is the fiendish effect of a single night's bombing and the wake of terror and destruction that it leaves behind. And yet today, if you were in London, you would undoubtedly find that the city is functioning with reasonable normality and that Londoners are following the even tenor of their lives. For, amazingly, the British have a capacity to take their punishment and keep on without collapse.

It is a dastardly round of mischief which has been going on for nine months and will perhaps continue for unnumbered years. Yet London miraculously still lives and the great sprawling city with its 7,500,000 souls is patiently ready to take more and more of these "worst" blitzings, waiting against the time when it can hand its punishment back in equal proportion. The time, they say, is not very far distant.

MINUTE MEN OF NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRY

Today, as in 1775, New England provides the Minute Men for first defense of American liberty. These patriots of today are not alone the members of the armed forces of the United States. They are New England's men of industry, and labor, and finance. To them, and to their leadership in the National Defense Program, this edition is dedicated.

Compiled by
HARRY CHOMES

Saltonstall Pleads For Defense Loyalty

By LEVERETT SALTONSTALL
Governor of Massachusetts

Our country now has a single goal. This nation stands committed to a policy of aid to the democracies of the world. The decision was arrived at in open debate, by a procedure that is a testimonial to our faith in democratic principles.

All of us are now obligated to serve loyally the cause adopted by the majority of the American people. We owe it to ourselves to stand as a united people, a people who believe in team-play, the understanding and appreciation of men for one another.

This is a characteristic which men of this nation have displayed since the days of the Minute Men. Now in time of great peril we call to particular remembrance that fateful day for the liberties of the colonists, the 19th of April in the year 1775. Minutemen who rallied on the green in Lexington, and neighbors who stood by the bridge at Concord resisted with their lives the seizure of "powder and ball." Though they did not realize it, they created a free country.

Here was the beginning of a new democratic order. What these men did led the way directly to a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. There went out from this land into the world a great hope for the liberation of multitudes in subjection to political powers. The light of freedom shone in the dark places of the earth. For nearly 150 years there was the extension of freedom.

LIBERTY IN JEOPARDY

The expectation grew that nation would join with nation in federation and union, and in due time that there would be a world-wide community of freemen. But instead, we have witnessed in this generation the two greatest wars in history. Dictators conspire to destroy in every country the sacred rights of man. Even in the United States we feel that our liberty is in jeopardy.

In the face of these conditions, and with a desire to be faithful to the heritage of our hard-won freedom, we have given a mandate to the President to send aid to Great Britain, and other democracies defending the liberty of the world by arms. To those countries which have been reduced to subservience by tyrannical forces, we say they have our unbounded sympathy, and all moral and material help that we can convey. As for ourselves, we are mightily preparing our defenses in all respects.

GOV. LEVERETT SALTONSTALL

In this hour we are doing what we believe the forefathers would approve. We are animated by the spirit of those early patriots. As they turned back the wave of the past, we, too, are resolved to do likewise.

URGES HELP OF ALL

In Europe, ancient hatreds have been exploited by unscrupulous political powers employing the military strategy of "divide and conquer." Hitler and his cohorts demeaned a nation by raising class and religious differences to the level of a national policy. That is the lesson for America.

Now, with the world in turmoil, propagandists from abroad seek to "divide and conquer" in America. This must stop. If the American people are to be successful in their defense of American democracy against the inroads of dictatorship, leaders in industry, workers, and women in homes, have a duty, as well as young men in military service. This is no time for division in America.

The United States of America is now engaged in a total plan of defense as a safeguard against the total war that is devastating Europe. The United States needs the help of every man, woman, and child in this country. Most important in this defense right now is goodwill and understanding between industry and workers.

Our United States remains one of the few countries on earth where the word "goodwill" still has any meaning. It is because "goodwill" does mean so much to Americans that our way of life has always grown richer and more free. If we are to preserve that life, liberty and pursuit of happiness, the strain of crisis must never be permitted to weaken "The Spirit of 1776," which makes us a solid nation of united men and women.

"HEADS UP!"

GIVE 'em room—they're moving! Crane-men swinging their giant loads of tank frames and turbine castings . . . operators of massive presses thumping out parts for guns and motors . . . workmen lit by the flare of electric welding—moving to the quick beat of the punch press, to the rumble of the conveyor, to the whine of the whirling lathe. Things are rolling today in America's factories.

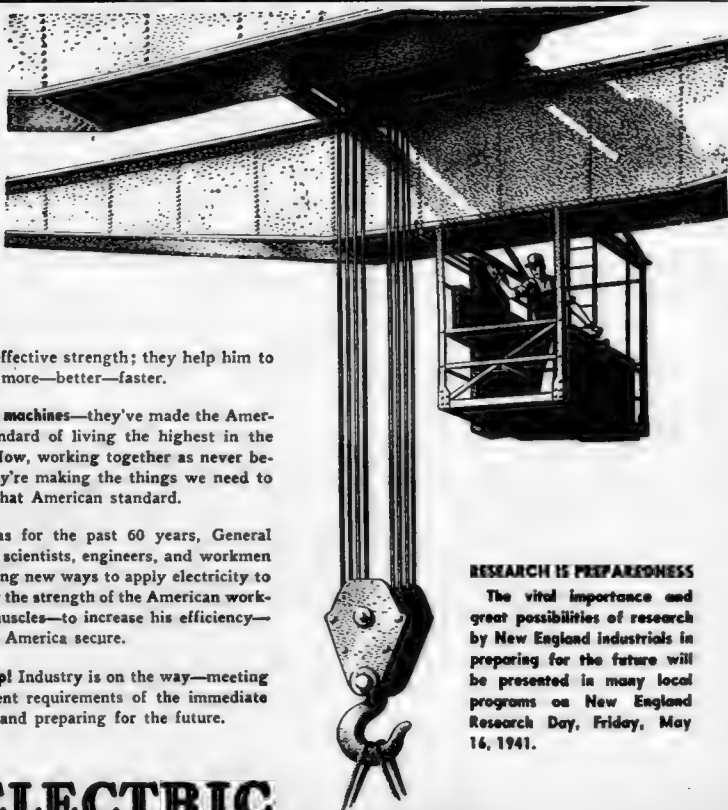

Action—that's what we're getting—from the world's best workmen and the world's best production machinery. For the American workman of today is a superman compared with his counterpart of only a few decades ago. Industry has given him as helpers mechanical strong men in the form of power tools and machines. These multiply his effective strength; they help him to produce more—better—faster.

Men and machines—they've made the American standard of living the highest in the world. Now, working together as never before, they're making the things we need to defend that American standard.

Today, as for the past 60 years, General Electric scientists, engineers, and workmen are finding new ways to apply electricity to multiply the strength of the American workman's muscles—to increase his efficiency—to make America secure.

Heads up! Industry is on the way—meeting the urgent requirements of the immediate present and preparing for the future.

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, APRIL 18, 1941

Aiming at full utilization of man and machine hours for defense work in this area and the aiding of smaller manufacturers in procuring contracts, the New England Council has become a clearing house of vital information along these lines.

In that functioning, the Council is serving as spokesman for New England interests in connection with defense policies and acts as a liaison unit between federal defense authorities and New England public officials and private interests. Through a series of bulletins and through its monthly New England News Letter, the Council has led before selected trade and industrial organizations of the Northeast the results of exhaustive explorations toward bringing the small manufacturers and industries into the defense program.

DATA AVAILABLE

Now the industrial data and information collected by the Council, in co-operation with the several state development commissions, manufacturers' associations, chambers of commerce and others, has been made available to the newly appointed "New England Co-ordinator of Defense for the Office of Production Management," under William S. Knudsen.

This co-ordinator is Albert M. Creighton of the Federal Reserve Bank, 30 Pearl st., and his principal mission is to expedite the vital, important work of bringing more and more New England manufacturers into the national defense program through subcontracting.

The co-ordinator's office will neither place orders nor make purchases. These will continue to be handled by Army, Navy and subsidiary procurement agencies. It will, however, assist procurement officers in getting in touch with New England industrial resources not now being utilized in the defense program.

It will advise and assist smaller industries in getting subcontracts, and aid prime contractors in spreading their work loads among qualified plants.

ANSWERS HERE

"It will no longer be necessary for manufacturers seeking ways and means of securing defense orders to go to Washington for this information," said Co-ordinator Creighton in commenting on the new program.

"Many of the answers to their problems can be found in the co-ordinator's Boston office."

"If there are difficulties of financing, we are in a position to offer helpful advice."

"Our office is here to speed up the national defense program and we earnestly invite New England manufacturers to contact by letter or visit the co-ordinator's office for consultation about defense production requirements and procedures."

This agency and the New England Council are working for a common end—getting the greatest volume of defense items quickly in the hands of the Army and Navy, through utilization of the greatest possible number of New England industries, from tool makers to the producers of the finished article.

The Council announces that the Massachusetts Industrial Committee for National Defense now has perfected a "community pooling plan" to aid the work of placing subcontracts with the smaller industries.

BETTER EQUIPPED

Larger companies, according to the Council, are usually better equipped, individually, to figure costs, make estimates and prepare bids on government work, as well as being better able to furnish the large quantities often called for by government agencies.

Also they are better able, as a rule, to prove financial responsibility, furnish bonds and otherwise comply with government contract requirements.

Labor Backs Battle On Democracy Foes

By KENNETH I. TAYLOR

Secretary-Treasurer of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor

Labor's task is to fight the enemy of democracy by producing the weapons of war in our factories.

The battle against the forces of depression is being fought by brave men and women in factory and field, in the air and on the sea. It is for America's Minutemen of today to produce for our friends on the front lines abroad the material with which we believe they can and will defeat the aggression of vicious barbarism.

And it is the duty of the Minutemen of today to protect freedom by the self-discipline upon which the foundation of freedom is based.

We can and must ignore the false insinuations of the Tories whether these forces of reaction wear the swastika or the hammer and sickle. Valley Forge looked a more hopeless arena than the Battle of Britain but the necessity for victory was no less then than now!

bility, furnish bonds and otherwise comply with government contract requirements.

And this means, the Council points out, that the smaller manufacturer does not stand much chance of getting a direct contract but must look for opportunities to subcontract.

Heretofore the small manufacturer with available facilities but no defense business has had to shop around to find a primary contractor who could use what he has to offer.

The Rhode Island "Farming Out"

Service and the "Worcester Plant" are being used as basis for getting these primary contractors contacted with smaller industries who would subcontract and thus use otherwise idle man and machine hours.

Voluntinous inventories of machine installations, and types, in numerous plants have been made, and for the primary contractors has been answered his question:

"Where can I find (so many) hours of planer, of boring mill, or screw machine capacity right now?"

Banks to Aid Defense Bond Sales

By DANA S. SYLVESTER

Executive Manager of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts.

Today the question of National Defense is uppermost in the hearts and minds of the people.

D. S. Sylvester

Industry is responding to the call for airplanes, tanks, guns and all the other needed equipment for the army and navy. Thousands of young men are devoting a year to military training and thousands of men and women are finding employment in defense industries. What does this great defense program mean for savers and for savings banks?

To finance this program the government will be obliged to borrow a great deal of money and the Secretary of the Treasury has announced a program of the sale of defense bonds to begin on May 1. Savings banks will cooperate in this program and in all probability the average man or woman will find it convenient to buy defense bonds or defense savings stamps from local savings banks.

The bonds are called "Series E Defense Savings Bonds." Buyers of these bonds should remember that they are not coupon bonds but so-called discount bonds which must be kept to maturity, that is ten years in order to earn the full interest return.

For example, a bond purchased on May 1 for $18.75 will be redeemed for $25 at the end of ten years so that its rate of interest over that period is 2.9 per cent.

If, however, the bond is redeemed before the ten years are run, the interest rate is less.

Trucks in Defense

"The motor transportation truck today is an indispensable unit for home defense," declared Allan J. Wilson, head of A. Towle Co., one of the largest trucking firms in New England.

"The flexibility of the modern motor truck in the distribution of raw materials and manufactured goods necessary for preparedness makes them a necessity in our defense program."

"Interstate and intrastate carriers, operating day and night, are spending a great volume of freight to manufacturing and processing plants, warehouses and other establishments engaged in our all important defense program."

Prosperity Returns to New Bedford

New Bedford is the greatest city in the world for ups and downs. One hundred years ago whaling ships bound out to every port in the world entered and departed from her harbor. Then came a decline. In the textile days, a short time ago, which everyone remembers, New Bedford was up again. The hum of her mills succeeded the sound of the sea and she was prosperous.

T. A. Haish

Again after the World War, and recently in depression days, New Bedford was hard hit and was down again . . . but not for long.

It did what many other cities failed to do in their grief—modified assessment valuations on unused industrial property and abated taxes so as to save the vacant mill buildings for other industries that were looking for new homes.

Such structures were not torn down to avoid taxes and make room for auto parking. Gradually and steadily they filled up with new machinery and new employees making products never before made in New England.

A visit with T. A. Haish, spark-plug director of the Industrial Development Legion, provides the answer to New Bedford's humming activity—5220 new jobs, 39 new industries in three years is the record of this organization sponsored by the city's public-spirited citizens.

THE BRITISH TAX has been raised to FIFTY PER CENT of incomes, and that is a MINIMUM.

The maximum is NINETY-SEVEN PER CENT.

If the war lasts for two or three more years, all incomes in England will be confiscated, leaving just enough for the bare means of living.

England will then be Commufascist.

And when the war ends, the forces in the economic saddle in England will see to it that this form of State Socialism is NOT repealed.

What does that mean to us in still-peaceful America?

It means that if we go into this European war, particularly if it is a long-drawn-out contest, this is EXACTLY WHAT WILL HAPPEN HERE—the confiscation of everything except bread money.

If we become actively involved in the war we, too, shall soon be on the road to State Socialism.

There is a powerful clique in Washington, as there is in England, which is set on nationalizing our industries and incomes.

The seizure will be called "defense."

But it will really be "DEFEAT"—defeat for the American way of life, our institutions and our system of free enterprise.

The only thing that can really SAVE that which is worth saving—our liberties and the free competitive system WHICH HAS MADE US MIGHTY—is to STAY OUT OF THIS WAR.

A LYNN PHYSICIAN, Dr. James A. Dumas, who is resigning as chairman of Draft Board No. 88, makes an intelligent criticism of the Selective Service system.

Dr. Dumas thinks the current practice of dual examinations of selectees is unfair and ought to be changed.

He tells how selectees are frequently honored with receptions, banquets and gifts after their local board doctors have certified them as fit for military duty.

Then, after giving up their jobs, selling their automobiles and making various financial sacrifices, selectees leave their homes in the manner of heroes.

Later—sometimes less than 24 hours—those who are turned down by Army physicians in the second examination return to their families and friends more or less as candidates for the "laughing stock club."

This needless suffering could doubtless be prevented if Selective Service authorities shortened the interval between the local examinations and those given by Army doctors.

If both tests were made on the same day, selectees' uncertainty and perplexity would be ended completely.

Dr. Dumas also questions the wisdom of giving a man 30 years of age or older a year of training in the Army and then keeping him in the reserve for ten years.

Such a man, he says, would become so old that he would be worthless to the Army.

Many Americans, including distinguished military officials, think the same thing.

FEW AMERICANS would accept the job of public executioner.

Most persons cringe at the thought of ever having to put a fellow human being to death.

Yet, in spite of this well known popular sentiment, the electric chair seems to have many friends.

Only this week our Massachusetts Senate was asked to abolish capital punishment and to substitute life imprisonment for convicted first-degree murderers.

The vote was ELEVEN for retention of the death chair and EIGHT for doing away with it.

Fortunately, the issue is not entirely settled.

Next Tuesday Senators will consider three other measures affecting the death penalty.

The most important of these proposals alters existing statutes to permit juries to say whether a person convicted of first-degree murder shall die or spend his life behind bars.

It is profoundly to be hoped that Senators will be guided in their deliberations by the knowledge that Massachusetts is now one of a small group of five States having mandatory death laws.

Thirty-six other States and the Federal Government permit the alternative penalties of life or death in first degree murder convictions.

HALF THE TOWN is mourning with Ruby Newman, popular dance-band maestro, over the loss of his father.

There is a story we know about Newman, pere, and Newman, fils, which rivals any Horatio Alger tale. And now it can be told, at the risk of having Ruby break every bone in our body to make us tell how we heard it.

If a title is needed, let's call it: "Ruby—Boston's Golden Boy."

And after Clifford Odets reads it, we don't think he'll mind our taking the famous title he used for his unforgettable play and movie, concerning the young concert violinist who became a prize-fighter.

When Ruby was a small boy his father was one of the biggest real estate men in Boston. He built, for instance, that long block of apartment houses, facing the Huntington avenue overpass, on Jamaicaaway, as well as a great many other large buildings around town.

During those prosperous years, he had Ruby educated and dreamed some day of hearing his son acclaimed as a great concert violinist.

But Ruby, as he grew older, developed ideas of his own. Popular music lured him from the classical and he organized his own dance orchestra, doing exceedingly well at it, thank you.

FATHER NEWMAN said nothing, but felt broken-hearted. He completely ignored Ruby's new business and Ruby, in turn, respecting his attitude, never mentioned it.

Then came the depression and all its horrors for real estate men—banks calling in their mortgages, brokers yelling for more, and still more!—margin and tenants breaking their leases for cheaper quarters.

Caught right in the middle of it, the elder Newman saw his life's work dissolving before his eyes.

It was then that Ruby, our Golden Boy, spoke up as simply as this:

"Father, would $50,000 help you?"

And before his father, completely stunned, could reply, Ruby had the check all written out—well able to afford this sum from his thriving business.

His dance bands were everywhere. Many a deb in Boston refused to make her debut if papa couldn't afford to have Ruby for her dance, saying that her party would be a flop.

We'd like to end this story right here, but life being what it is, that $50,000 did not save the family homestead, or stop the debacle, it just went down the drain, as did many another fortune of those days. Remember?

The elder Newman lost his houses, anyway.

But what satisfaction it must have brought to his declining years, to see his son so successful in the profession he had chosen.

Incidentally, that early training of Ruby is discernible today. Sometime when you're at a party, or hotel, where Ruby is playing, just ask him to play Debussy's "Clair de Lune".

If Spaulding, or any of the other great violinists, play it with more understanding, feeling and skill, just let us know, will you?

A SAD LITTLE GIRL right now is Cynthia Burrage, who misses, probably more than anything, her daily polo game with her family. Eighteen years old, Cynthia was last year voted "Queen of the Glamour Debs" by the Harvard boys, and she was also elected prettiest girl on the North Shore in a local contest. All this means very little to Cynthia, compared to a good scrap on a polo field.

CYNTHIA BURRAGE TRIES TO HIT THE BULL'S-EYE
But She Much Prefers a Hard Game of Polo

There is a huge polo field at Candlewood Farm, the Burrage summer home, which is one of the show places of Ipswich, and the family fell into the pleasant habit of having a game each day, when father returned from the office.

Mamma, papa, little Cynthia, and her equally little sister, Nancy, and Cameron, their brother, used to form a team and take on anyone daring enough to challenge them.

But now Cameron is at Camp Edwards and his teaves are none too frequent. Nancy is married (to William Bowers Chace) and lives in Uxbridge, so this leaves Cynthia all alone with Papa and Mama and of course, that's not enough for a polo team.

CYNTHIA, therefore, is concentrating on her sketching and painting. In addition to playing polo, she skates well, skis, plays a top game of tennis and swims like a fish.

But she's far from the athletic type. She's utterly feminine and adores frills on her dresses. In fact, she looks as pretty and fragile as a Dresden shepherdess. Petite, she has very light grey-blue eyes with enormous dark lashes and hair the color of dark maple.

Although her grandmother, Mrs. Albert Cameron Burrage, owns the most famous orchid conservatories in the world, we've never seen Cynthia wear one. She far prefers camellias, which she tucks in her hair, or even pins on her gloves, or such humble posies as lilacs-of-the-valley and violets. (Harvard swains: no charge for the above information.)

Her favorite jewel is a star sapphire and naturally it's perfect with her blue eyes.

Should you encounter her walking across the Public Garden, or shopping on Boylston or Newbury Street, you would probably mistake her for the most beautiful 12-year-old child you ever saw.

But don't ever take her on at riding, unless you ride hard and well!

LUCIUS BEEBE GOES TO HOSPITAL

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, April 18.—Last Sunday, in Washington, Evelyn Walsh McLean held her annual luncheon party which usually is attended by a host of notables. Lucius Beebe, who had been invited, took the train to Washington, but could get no Pullman reservation. The conductor finally sold Beebe the only seat available in the smoking car. It was next to another McLean guest—John L. Lewis. Lucius returned to N. Y. after the party—and went straight to Regent Hospital for an examination. . . . At the luncheon, Jerome Zerbe was introduced to John L. Lewis, Jr., and asked: "You're at Princeton now, aren't you?" . . . "Yes," replied young Lewis. "Did you go there?" . . . "No, I went to Yale," Zerbe informed. "That was in the times when coal operators made enough money to send their sons to college" . . . Seiden Friedman is the author of "The Airmen," a narrative poem. One section of that poem concerns the Wright Brothers. Friedman therefore recorded that section and sent it to Orville Wright . . . From the secretary of the first man to make a successful flight came this acknowledgment: "Mr. Wright thanks you for the record, but has not yet been able to play it—because he has taken his phonograph apart for experimental purposes."

ON THE STEPS of City Hall, when Lord Halifax presented medals to the widows of the victims of the World's Fair bombing, Mayor LaGuardia asked Gertrude Lawrence whether she'd sing "The Star Spangled Banner" . . . "I should love to," said Miss Lawrence, "but I don't think my voice is big enough" . . . "Maybe so, Lady," the Mayor told her, "but you're big enough" . . . Stewart McDonald, former Federal Housing Administrator, was confronted by a personal housing problem, but finally solved it. McDonald has reserved a suite of rooms in the new Statler Hotel in Washington, D. C. . . . To date, not only is the ground for this hotel still unbroken—but the edifice now on that site has not as yet been demolished . . . Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes is in Washington's Emergency Hospital . . . William McC. Martin, retiring president of the N. Y. Stock Exchange, recommended as his successor, Theodore S. Watson of Watson and White. He's a New Deal, anti-Morgan millionaire . . . The record for per diem salaries in the production field will be set this week—when Michael Todd signs to do the Fair at Bockton. Todd will make $10,000 for seven days' work . . . Ann Corio will make her legit debut on Broadway in "White Cargo." Jules Levenhal will produce it at the Windsor Theater . . . Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran pitcher who has been working at the Flea Circus, will be signed to coach Tommy Dorsey's softball team.

DARRYL ZANUCK summoned one of his directors for a conference. When the director arrived, Zanuck, with a mysterious air, took him into the inner room to show him the Lieutenant-Colonel's uniform which just had arrived. They surveyed it in silence. "When," the director finally spoke, "can you wear it?" . . . "That," said Zanuck, "is what I want to ask YOU" . . . Zanuck found occasion to wear it the next day—when Army officers arrived to witness John Ford's first military production, an educational film about Hygiene . . . Weldon Barr worked eight years to reach the big-time. This week he achieved it at Roxty theater. Producers and talent scouts who saw him left their cards backstage. But backstage, too, came another card—and this one he'll honor. It was from the Draft Board. He leaves for the Army immediately after his last show at Roxty's.

SIR THOMAS BEECHAM, British conductor who returned here after a concert tour, describes the concert halls of this country as "the Mausoleums of America, attended by widows who killed their first husbands by overheating their houses and then married gigolos who died from disappointment at the size of the legacies" . . . Beecham told Carlisle Straus' "Salome" in London when he tried to do Richard Strauss' "Salome" in London the Lord Chamberlain censured it—objecting to the presentation of a Biblical character. "Did it stop you?" Smith asked. . . . "No, we went right ahead," Sir Thomas informed. "We just changed the character's name to Charlie."

WHY ARE bathrooms so small? Why shouldn't so important and much-used place as a bathroom be as large as a small bedroom. Or as large as a large bedroom for that matter. Why do bathtubs have to be long and narrow and difficult to get in and out of? Why not have a bathroom large enough to have a small pool with steps into it. Say a pool eight feet square. I'm not unreasonable. I wouldn't ask for a diving board in my bathroom pool; just a little more safety and comfort than the present type of bath offers. That will be all today about bathrooms. But there will be more on the subject later. In fact, we have made our Bitter Campaign No. 98720 one for "Bigger and Better Bathrooms."

TRIUMPHS of tall girls continue. Whoever said 1941 was to be "The Tall Girl's Year" seems to have been right. Now Marie Whitmore, a tall girl, has been chosen "The Perfect Co-Ed" by the students of the University of California. But there, there little girl, don't you cry the cute little tricks will get a break bye and bye. And be encouraged by the thought that Janet Gaynor, Merle Oberon, Joan Bennett, Sonja Henie and Annabella, wife of Tyrone Power, are all "half-pinters." And, besides, this department loves you!

IF INVITED to dinner would you have to borrow an evening gown? Who is Tony Galento? Have you changed your hair-do in three months? Do you say "sweet" or "just one of those things"? Did you create something last week: a poem, a cake or a rug? These are some of the questions asked those who visit New York University's Women Self-Evaluation Clinic for the purpose of getting a little more sartorial, mental and physical glamour. Don't ask me why knowing who Tony Galento is has anything to do with this. What puzzles me, too, is asking a woman if she has made a rug in a week. Can a woman make a rug in a week? And why don't they have a Men's Self-Evaluation Clinic, where clients are asked: "How often do you get a hair cut?" "When did you have your shoes shined last?" "Who is Ruth McGinnis?" "If a button came off your vest could you sew it on yourself?" "Did you create a poem, write a song or paint the side of a house last week?"

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS. Q. What was that poem about war you said should be printed at least once a month in every newspaper? A. Do you mean the following by Francis Moore:

When after many battles past,
Both tired with blows, make peace at last,
What is it, after all, the people get?
Why! Taxes, widows, wooden legs and debt.

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

BUFFALO, N. Y., Thursday.—After I visited the Red Cross workrooms in Charlotte, N. C., yesterday, I went to a reception which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tillett had at their home, and enjoyed seeing them and meeting some of their friends. Then I went back to the Hotel Barringer and had the pleasure of seeing one of the girls I had taught in school years ago, who came with her husband, Lieut. Louis Jallade, from Fort Bragg, where he is now stationed.

I also saw Mr. Ray Swayze, whom I had seen often years ago with a group of young persons. He was looking forward very happily to entering into Boy Scout work as a career.

After the lecture, we took the train back to Washington. Yesterday was rather cloudy, so perhaps it was just as well that I was not trying to fly to some distant point. I lunched with the wives of the members of the 74th Congress and had a most enjoyable time.

We left Washington Wednesday evening by train for Buffalo, N. Y., where I am giving a lecture tonight.

IN THE PAST few days I have had so much time on planes that I actually finished reading everything I took with me. I may have mentioned to you before "War by Revolution," by a young Englishman, Francis Williams, who has been in politics for a number of years. I was much interested in it because I feel that his contention is correct, that really to win the fight against Hitlerism, the people in all the countries under Hitler's control must want freedom and a better life brought about through their own action in preference to accepting whatever a dictator gives them.

Mr. Williams insists that this must be a "people's war." The following quotation, perhaps, epitomizes his view of the future:

"If (the war) will be won when the people of Britain speak to the people of Europe and in one voice call them to a democratic revolution of the people against tyranny everywhere."

Hollywood Today

DURBIN FILM ROLE TO CUMMINGS

By Louella O. Parsons

Robert Cummings

HOLLYWOOD, April 18.—Today is Deanna Durbin's wedding day—and so it's especially interesting that Robert Cummings will be her hero in her next picture, "Almost an Angel." Remember how good they were in "Spring Parade"? But who expects a bride to be thinking about a career for the past two days have been a merry-go-round for the little Durbin and her real life hero, Vaughan Paul.

Don't say I told you—because Deanna has put her foot down on having her wedding turned into a publicity holiday, or a typical Hollywood marriage—but Vaughn's wedding gift to her is a diamond bracelet with matching clips and earrings in the same mounting as her engagement ring. "Almost an Angel" is the picture in which Charles Laughton co-stars with Deanna. Good luck and words of happiness, Deanna and Vaughn.

and she never missed one of the appearances scheduled for her.

I PRINTED ages ago that Samuel Goldwyn wanted to borrow Bob Hope from Paramount after the Dallas, Tex., preview trip of "The Westerner" when Hope won over all the Dallas folk and Sam too. Now Bob will be borrowed for a South American musical. The idea of starring Bob in "Whoopie" has been dropped in favor of the good neighbor picture. He'll play a Pan-American air pilot who falls in love with an entertainer and it is Goldwyn's hope that he may also be able to borrow Dorothy Lamour from Paramount to be teamed with Senior Hope.

I AM VERY EXCITED about our air preview tonight. Charles Grapewin, star of "Tobacco Road," 20th Century-Fox picture, will be the guest of honor and he'll be heard as Jeeter Lester, the character he created on the screen. Mrs. Grapewin will say a few words on the program which goes over CBS from 7 to 7:30 P.M. Charley, who only makes a few pictures, came in from his ranch to have dinner with me and discuss our show.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Doris Duke Cromwell clipped in on the Pan-American lines yesterday from Honolulu. She will leave a little later for New Jersey to see her mother. She said today she was parted from James Cromwell but she says she has no plans for an immediate divorce. She returns to Honolulu in July where she will make her home.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Gene Tierney is in the Good Samaritan Hospital with an eye infection; John Barrymore also is on the sick list, suffering with fatigue and the flu; Stirling Hayden certainly makes the girls hearts go pitty pat. When he walked into the Florentine Gardens with Martha O'Driscoll there was a flutter—even among the NTG show girls; Linda Darnell was at the plane to meet Mickey Rooney when he came in from Mexico and he brought her a silver and jade bracelet; Kay Aldridge and Harry Crocker dancing for hours to Henry King's orchestra at Ciro's; Laird Cregar, who goes in for redheads, dining at the Mocambo one night with Gloria Hawkins and the other night with Cathy Lewis, both of whom have titian locks; the Jules Stein dinner honoring Lady Mendi was very nice.

LOUELLA PARSONS, famed internationally-circulated Hearst motion picture columnist, will be heard locally over Station WEEI every Friday between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

THE MORAL IS THE SAME TODAY!

NEVER was the need for national unity of purpose more apparent than it is today. With the ominous clouds of war hovering on the horizon, one task alone is all important—National Defense. The purpose of National Defense is two-fold—it prepares us for the eventualities of war—and it serves notice to the dictatorial powers of the world that the overthrow of our democratic ideals is a task to be approached with care.

To attain this efficient standard of defense, personal ambitions—personal gains, and even personal rights must be submerged for the common good.

Even as the little Peter of our childhood tales—spent a cold, dismal night with his tiny finger blocking the hole in the dike, that his native fields might not be submerged by the sea—we too, must do our part.

This is the time for co-operation—the time when every man must unselfishly do his job—be he of the management or laboring classes.

This is the time for the tightening of the belt—the setting of the jaw—the preparation of the nation in its time of trial.

WE MUST HAVE MUTUAL CO-OPERATION . . .
MUTUAL HELPFULNESS . . . and MUTUAL RESPONSIBILITY!

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

UNCLE SAM'S fleet may be in the Pacific . . . but you'd have thought all the Admirals had been given leave to come to Boston if you had seen last night's performance of 1941's Vincent Ventures . . . the annual musical extravaganza produced by members of Beantown's exclusive Vincent Club . . .

The famous Vincent drill, highlight of each year's show, was a tribute to our Navy . . .

From beginning to end the show is tuneful, lively and a delight to the eye with beautiful costumes and novel lighting effects . . . in fact it belies the title of the prologue "Not as Good as Last Year" by surpassing 1940's production and displaying a variety of talents among the deb's of the past winter . . .

New Singing 'Find'

RUTH BREWER, the new singing "find," took a tip from New York night club entertainers when she chose "Chi-Chi-Castanango" as her hit song, for that's the current rage in Gotham . . . Though only 18 Ruth has a cultivated singing voice plus a jovial personality and perfect poise which enables her to put plenty of "oomph" into her numbers . . .

The number which stops the show is called "Rhythm in Charlestown," a novel tap dance done by a chorus of girls dressed in prison stripes with their feet chained together . . . As they tap they clink the chains on the floor in rhythm with the music and produce a most unusual effect . . . Taking part are Sylvia Choate, Priscilla Blumer, Constance Bradley, Priscilla and Margaret Crocker, Betty Breed, Barbara Higginson, Helen Knowles, Debbie Law, Amy Suter, Mary Whittier and Sylvia Winsor . . .

Julia Barbour's talent for putting over a song has survived many a Vincent show and once again she holds the spotlight in several riotous songs . . . Debbie Law's Conga antics, Cynthia Reece's singing, Betsy Ayer's radio number and Ann Sweetser's songs are other hits of the show. Mrs. James Parker, 2d, president of the club, had a busy evening, and those two capable and gracious Vincent "execs," Mrs. George Bemis and Mrs. Henry McBurney Parker, did not relax their duties for a moment of the evening . . . Mrs. Bemis wore a striking gown of pale gray with a gold cord sash and large flat-topped handkerchief adding a brilliant note of color . . .

DOROTHY STORER, post-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. P. Storer of Cambridge, did a rushing business selling programs and flowers at last night's performance of the "1941 Vincent Ventures."

Jane Brown Weds Soon

Miss Jane Elizabeth Brown, of Brookline, who will become the wife of William S. Burrage of Middlebury, Vt., on April 26, will be married at a round of pre-wedding parties.

Hostesses entertaining in honor of the couple include Mrs. Edward Watkins, Mrs. Robert Booth and Mrs. George Kuehn.

The four o'clock ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride on St. Paul st. Miss Elizabeth (cott of St. David's, Pa., will be the bride's only attendant and the best man will be Dr. George Bartol of Wellesley Hills.

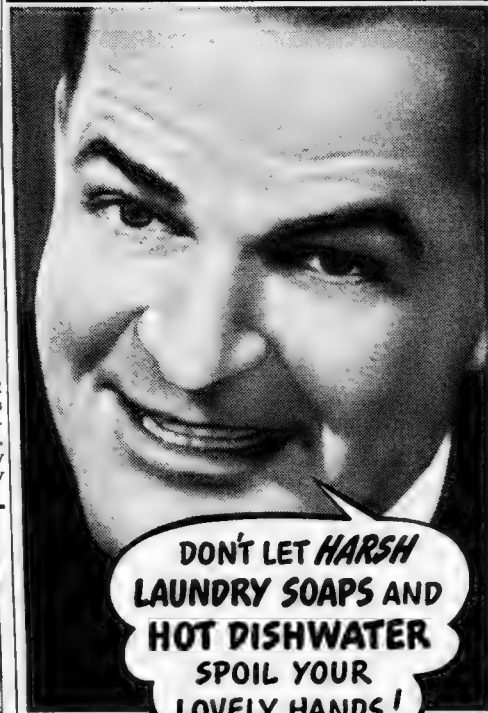

Out of town guests coming for the wedding include Lieut. Commander George Russell of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Henry Francis of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Payne of Beverly Hills, Cal., Mr. and Mrs. Rama Braggiotti, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry David of New York.

Smith Graduates Plan Luncheon

A group of younger Smith College alumnae will usher at the annual Smith College Alumnae luncheon which will be held at the Hotel Somerset, Saturday, April 26. President Herbert Davis and Acting Dean Mary B. McElwain of the college will be guests of honor.

Miss Helen B. Butcher of Cambridge, chairman of the usher corps, will have as her assistants, Miss Mary Bingham of West Newton, Mrs. Norman H. Boyer of Lexington, Mrs. William S. Sleight, Jr., of Marblehead, Mrs. John W. Filoon of Brockton, Miss Nancy P. Marsh of Danvers, and Mrs. Charles R. Corwin of Winchester.

Graduates who wish to sit at their class tables should make reservations by Tuesday through Mrs. Raymond S. Wilkins of Winchester, chairman of the committee.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

What infuriates a man about back-seat driving is the tone of the little woman's voice, which sounds to him as if she is fault-finding. Naturally, he resents it. So the next time your husband makes you so nervous you are almost ready to hop out and walk, just say to him, in a sweetly reasonable tone:

"I seem to be a little nervous today, dear. Would you just as soon drive slowly?"

He'll slow right down. For awhile, anyway.

Of course, you don't mean to adopt a nagging tone of voice. But when you are nervous, you get tense, the tension tightens your vocal chords, and what comes out is a voice about as musical as the twang of rubber bands.

You can get a much better idea of the way you sound to others by standing in a corner, with the face close to the walls, and talking to yourself in a conversational tone. The two walls throw your voice back at you and you have a fairly accurate gauge of the tonal quality.

Most common faults in voices are in tonal quality, which may be monotonous, harsh, shrill or corrosive; in hesitancy of speech, or in talking through the teeth. You can do quite a lot about remedying those defects yourself. Practice reading aloud and listen to yourself. And instead of singing in the bathtub, repeat the vowels, letting your voice rise and fall.

To eliminate the "ohs" and "ahs" think first what you are going to say, then take your time about saying it. Whenever you feel your nerves tying themselves into knots, make a deliberate effort to relax—especially your throat and jaw muscles. Yawn—that will help the tone.

Tomorrow—a star to follow.

Manners

Her Stepson's Marriage

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I married a divorced man, and now his son by his former marriage is to be married very soon, at a church wedding.

I am completely confused as to the seating procedure at the church. What pew should the boy's mother and her husband occupy, and in what pew should my husband and I sit?

DOROTHY.

At the church ceremony, the bridegroom's mother and her husband will sit in the front pew at the right side of the aisle. If the bridegroom's mother has other children, they will sit in this first pew, and the members of her family will sit in the second pew.

You and the bridegroom's father, and the nearest relatives of the bridegroom's father, sit in the third or fourth pew.

HERE'S WHY YOU SHOULD BUY COFFEE IN THE BEAN!

Flavor's what you're after in coffee—and Dame Nature seals the flavor in the coffee bean. So, A&P sends its freshly roasted coffee to its stores still in the bean.

That's the way it's sold to you—fresh and full of flavor. And not until you buy it is the flavor-seal broken by gauding. Then, A&P Coffee is Custom Ground before your eyes, precisely right for your own coffee pot, so you get all the fine flavor.

The fresh, fragrant coffee you take home assures you many a delicious cup...in fact, we doubt if you could fail to brew coffee of magnificent flavor every time you use A&P Coffee, Custom Ground for your coffee-maker.

Breakfast Should Be Made Attractive and Varied

By MARTHA LEE

WHEN YOU make your children take the time to really enjoy their breakfasts in the morning before they start out on an active day, you are teaching them a good health habit. Doctors and nutritionists agree that nothing can prepare one better for whatever the day may bring than a good hot breakfast eaten in as leisurely a fashion as any other meal.

And one of the best ways of teaching children to give breakfast the time due it, is to make this meal attractive and varied. Also, be sure the children get up early enough so they do not have to watch the clock as they eat. To help them attach some importance to this meal, try to serve it almost as you do the family dinner—with some formality.

It takes perseverance to stick to these rules, but it is entirely worthwhile.

WAYS TO GIVE VARIETY

More variety does not mean more work—just having a greater number of different fruits, juices, cereals, and breads on hand. Of course serve waffles and pancakes and muffins frequently and alternate between the cooked and uncooked cereals. You can never have too much fruit in a breakfast menu—so serve a juice such as tomato juice to start the meal, and then have the cereal with a fruit as well.

The following recipe is a suggestion for combining the cereal and fruit attractively. The rice flakes retain their crispness and the variety of fruits adds a gay note to the breakfast table.

RISE FLAKES AND FRUIT WESTERN STYLE

Rice flakes
1 whole apricot, canned
1 plum, canned

1 pear half, canned
Pour the cereal in each bowl. Arrange in the center the suggested fruits. Add juice drained from these fruits and serve at once.

BREAKFAST MUFFINS

2 cups flour
½ tsp. salt
3 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. sugar
1 cup milk
1 beaten egg
3 tsp. melted shortening
Sift flour with salt, baking powder and sugar; mix milk, egg and shortening and add all at once; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened, but not smooth. The batter will be lumpy. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in hot oven (400 deg. to 425 deg. F.) about 25 minutes. Makes one dozen muffins.

FLUFFY WAFFLES

2 well-beaten egg yolks
1½ cups milk
2 cups flour
¼ tsp. salt
3 tsp. baking powder
6 tbsp. melted shortening
2 stiffly beaten egg whites
Mix egg yolks and milk; add flour, sifted with salt and baking powder, then slightly cooled shortening. Beat smooth; fold in egg whites. Bake on ungreased waffle iron. Makes 4 to 6 waffles.

CORNMEAL GRIDDLE CAKES

1 cup boiling water

You Can Be Beautiful

Exquisite New Fragrances

By ARLINE GOULD

IF HIS favorite name for you is "angel" . . . a new "heaven sent" fragrance is natural for you, isn't it? Or the least you'd expect is that he'd be inspired to call you angel . . . after you'd lavished on yourself this verba potent new scent creation! And when you repeat the same gorgeous scent in dusting powder . . . eau de toilette . . . bath and hand soap . . . and bath oil . . . could it possibly go unnoticed and unappreciated? No!

Though the motif surrounding it is cherubin and seraphim, pink and blue clouds, and halos of gold and of flowers, and snowy white wings . . . they say that you'll get the idea of the scent if you put your face down in a great bunch of white flowers fresh-cut after a rain. Then you'll know how light and flower-fresh it is.

Now . . . all you have to do is put on a fragile ruffled dress if it's in the evening you're to prove the potency of "heaven sent" . . . or a slim navy blue crepe with possum white and lace around the shoulders, and a big-brimmed, very simple cartwheel hat . . . If the day-time is your hunting time . . . and let your new fragrance help you do the rest!

If you'd like to learn all about this exquisite new state of "heaven sent" fragrances, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

42 Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

IM STILL handing medals to the Reverend Sidney W. Powell, who wrote that straight-to-the-chin article, "CAN WE CURE CRIME?" It isn't often that a religious leader pulls on his gum boots and slashes right down into the manholes of crime. But here's one who has the fortitude to go there and the tolerance to understand after he arrives, which is saying plenty. Dr. Powell thinks, and says in no uncertain language, that we Americans have been riding for a fall. He looks with a suspicious eye on our venerated "American Standards" of Living and Luxury, and ties them up, directly, with the Dead End Kids who've gotta kill somebody because they've been deprived of their Divine Right to 16-cylinder speedsters.

All of which is sound reasoning, if you have what it takes to face it. Even more is Dr. Powell's contention that Young America is suffering violently from a lack of respect for anything anywhere or anyhow. As evidence of which he cites:

"I had part in a high school commencement recently. It was quite formal; in fact, I was the only person on the platform without either tuxedo or cap and gown. When the diplomas were presented by the principal, one young man received his with one hand, and with the other handed the principal a cigar.

"Now there was nothing vicious about that. The audience laughed heartily. But I thought of my own student days and the veneration we had for the principal of a high school or the president of a college.

"Today, however, no one is vested with real authority. Nothing is sacred. I do not blame the young people. I question the state of Society that develops this attitude. What of a generation that has no heroes, all of them having been liquidated by the de-bunking process? We lost something vital when everyone, regardless of attainment, is 'comrade.'"

WE WERENT all "comrades" in the early American days. We didn't want to swap sweet kisses with the fellows on the "other side of the tracks." And, for all our democracy, we didn't want to be We're, on the contrary, proud to be different. We wanted, individually, to be the best in our own line. Sure we were silly and lazy, as kids always are, but we still had life's and a reverence for those ideals.

There were things which we held sacred, even while we wiggle our ears and picked our warts. Things a fellow dreamed of with warm and wistful wonder.

"BUT NOTHING IS SACRED NOW!" It isn't the youngsters' fault. It's the fault of us, the older ones, who've stripped the glory and glamour from the human record, in order to show our own smartiness.

We're too busy listening to wise-cracks or dialing in on "hot numbers" to watch the silver weaving of the stars or sense the vast and lovely passage of the night.

We're too excited over gossip columns to note the pattern which men are weaving for their lives out of blood and dynamite. There is no true reverence, any more—no true wonder or terror or shocked awakening.

IT'S A BEASTLY business, all this facile mockery of beauty and nobility and truth.

It's beastly because it robs the youngster of his only real heritage. Life holds few realities at best—the love of Beauty and Bravery and Goodness lead the list.

If you rob a child of his reverence for these, you've robbed him of everything that will make and keep his life fine and inspiring.

When you wipe the reverence from a youngster's lips you darken the candles in his heart.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Lorella O. Parsons, noted filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

Oriental Pompadour Is New

IN THIS coiffure you see design . . . artistry . . . as it's rarely a privilege to see it in the more or less meaningless ringlet and wave build-up of the average hair do. It was done by Paul, and it is called an oriental pompadour. The hair is parted at the side and drawn up in a high, loose roll with tendrils curls over the brow. Across the back of the head, the hair is interestingly drawn across to emphasize the contour and two large tendrils curls softly frame the brow and back of the neck. The whole thing is slickly elegant.—ANNICE BRINK.

Garden Lecture Set For April 29

With the arrival of springlike weather garden enthusiasts are busy making elaborate plans for the coming outdoor season and eagerly looking for new ideas to beautify their grounds.

One of the most keenly anticipated affairs on the garden lover's program is the lecture to be given by Mrs. Irving C. Wright, president of the Chestnut Hill Garden Club, on Friday afternoon, April 29.

The lecture subject will be "Roses With Pastel Sketches." Mrs. Wright is vice-president of the New England Farm and Garden Ass'n, which will benefit from proceeds of the affair.

Helping to plan the lecture, which will be held at the home of Mrs. James M. Newell, are Mrs. Hubert L. Carter, Mrs. James D. Colt, Mrs. Newell and Mrs. Wright.

A SERVICE GROWS . . .

Founded on the idea that GOOD eyeglasses should be made available to working men and their families at prices well within their reach, Community began with one small office in Boston. The response to and appreciation of this dependable optical service at low prices was immediate. From humble beginnings Community Opticians now has 11 offices and has grown to be New England's busiest optical institution.

If you wear eyeglasses or ever expect to wear eyeglasses, it will pay you to visit one of Community's friendly offices and see for yourself why Community Opticians have won such popularity and prestige. You're always welcome, whether your visit is for free adjustment, free cleaning of your eyeglasses, a free lens cleaner or any optical service that we can render. We want you to make Community your eyeglass headquarters.

CARMEN MIRANDA CAPTURES 'THAT NIGHT IN RIO' HONORS ON NET'S SCREEN

Proves Herself Real Bombshell

By PEGGY DOYLE

Only the dynamic Carmen Miranda is never overshadowed by the sometimes too vivid assault of technician in Darryl F. Zanuck's South American beau geste, "That Night in Rio," now sizzling on the Net screen.

She is the Brazilian bombshell whose warbling of "Souise American Way" stopped the show at the Schubert last season. She stops the show again and again—in fact, every time she's within the camera's range—in "That Night in Rio."

Miranda—for menace, for IT, for razzamazzes (you get the idea?)—is TNT as the glamorous, spiffish song-and-dance pet of Rio's chili-chili nightspots whose partner, Don Ameche, is in love with her.

Ameche, who has put the spotlight on that overly expansive smile, doubles as the dashing Brazilian boulevardier, Baron Dante. Married to the lovely, long-limbed Alice Faye. The recent blarney between these two gentlemen is remarkable, as the entertainer's nightclub impersonation developed. And so, when the financier's business affairs become so starkly tangled as to require his hopping personally all over the country for a loan, he shrewdly sides with the night-club favorite to impersonate him.

The involvements that result are nicely handled by the highly mixed-up doubles . . . the straying baron, jealous of the sparkle the periodical's kiss puts in his alluring wife's blue eyes, decides to put her love to the test. The baroness, against that that night in Rio may have been spent not in the arms of her husband but in the spurious embrace of his provocative impersonator, is delighted.

The merry-mad night-club artist, who doesn't know what all the "rhodin" is for, want only a "recommendation" from the baroness. The vengeful Miranda is all for becoming another passion-flower in the baron's lapel, just to spite her apparently faithless sweetheart. The double entendre interchange.

between Senor Ameche and Senora Faye is doubly eye-popping, because both of them have that Cesar's-wife aura of wholesome ness about them. It will give your e-earnings a workout, but don't bring the children.

Alice Faye, looking pale and almost fragile beside the lady from Brazil, gets prettier, but the twinning Ameche gets better in this one. He has developed as an actor and does a laudable job in the dual role. But it is Miranda who walks away with the picture.

Glamour Rules RKO Boston's Stage as 'Vanities' Open

Girls, gams and gags this week make the RKO-Boston seem like what it ain't—a mitered hotspot, and never a cover charge.

Earl Carroll's "Vanities," newly glamorized in ostrich-plumes, peek-a-boob draperies and spangles, is currently giving the RKO Boston patrons a run for their admission with Bert Wheeler as the go-between man.

Wheeler, as skilful a master of ceremonies as you'll find off Broadway, proves indubitably that easy does it as he expertly pilots the footlight proceedings to a lively climax. His sure comedy sense and his deadpan delivery are swell assets.

Capably assisting him are Hank Ladd and Francette Malloy, both of them lank and loney to an appreciable degree.

Maintaining his "through-the-portal" pass-the-moon-beautiful little-in-the-world" standing, Carroll's present garden of girls boasts every variety of stream-lined bloom. They are at their most mouth-watering in the "Tower of Feathers" specialty number. The "Roses en Parade" and "White Funs in the Moonlight" are other effective production numbers.

The little as well as the big boys will enjoy Robert Williams and his famous dog Red ("He Didn't Do It") Just a pouch that's as benevolent as a velvet but pettish.

For the smaller, too, as well as the adult trade, is Frankson's magic tricks. His now-or-never-now-you-dont-elaborate act is a blue homework idea.

The Baltimoreites, and their tumbling and rope-skipping acrobatics, are rewarded with a good response and so is the singing of soloist Earl Cameron and Reginald Craig, the latter particularly when the song is "One Look At You."

The accompanying screen attraction, "Hide On, Vaquero," is a 20th Century-Fox Cinemascope production.

THE PHANTOM

Follow the Phantom in Colors in the Boston Sunday Advertiser

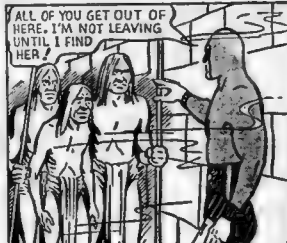

The Phantom Leaves—Under Protest

THE WILD MEN PLEAD WITH THE PHANTOM TO LEAVE THE DOOMED UNDERGROUND HANGAR—HE REFUSES—SAYING HE MUST FIND DIANA—

THEY DECIDE TO HELP THEIR MASKED FRIEND, SEARCHING THRU THE LABYRINTH FOR DIANA—AS THE FLAMES GROW HIGHER ON THE DYNAMITE CRATES...

ALL OF YOU GET OUT OF HERE, I'M NOT LEAVING UNTIL I FIND HER!

THEY CANNOT FIND HER. AGAIN THEY PLEAD WITH THE PHANTOM TO LEAVE—HE REFUSES...

THEN, WITH ONE ACCORD—THEY JUMP HIM!

POPEYE

POPEYE LOVES ME
LOVES ME NOT LOVES ME

OUKH!
OUKH!

POPEYE, YOU LOVE ME!! I AM SO HAPPY!

I AM HAPPY, TOO, 'CAUSE YA LOVES ME, OLIVE

H-M! THE SEA GOON'S WINGS ARE CLIPPED

I HAVE THE CHART, OUR SHIP STOPS HERE

WHAT? IN THE MIDDLE OF THE OCEAN?

YES, FROM HERE WE CONTINUE ON PORPOISE

ON PORPOISE?

YES, ON PORPOISE

LISSING, WE COMED HERE ON PURPOSE

I MEAN BY FISH

SKIPPY

WELL, I FINALLY LANDED THE WATER-BOY JOB FOR THE ORIOLE A.C. BASEBALL TEAM.

THAT'S GREAT. WHATEVER MADE SKIPPY SO BIG-HEARTED?

SEVEN PEANUTS AN' THREE JELLY BEANS.

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

YES SREE—THE DEAL'S CLOSED. I BOUGHT US A NEW SHIP!! PAID CASH—GOT THE PAPERS ALL SIGNED

GLORYOSKY BUT IT'S GRAND!

THANK HEAVEN

WAIT TILL YOU SEE HER PRETTY AS A PICTURE

A SMART SAILOR—WITH DIESEL ENGINES TO BE USED IF WE NEED 'EM—AND—

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO CALL THE SHIP?

THE 'HUMMING BIRD' OF COURSE—SAME NAME YOU GAVE OUR OLD SHIP WHEN YOU CHRISTENED HER—WE SPENT THIRTY HAPPY YEARS TOGETHER ON THE OLD 'HUMMING BIRD' AND WELL, KEEP RIGHT ON SAILING HAPPILY TOGETHER ON THE NEW ONE

HANDSOME HANK

...does he keep me guessing?

AM I JEALOUS! AND YOU USED TO BE SUCH A SCRAWNY KID... NEVER GOT A BREAK, WHAT HAPPENED?

I WAS TOLD I HAD A "VITAMIN B COMPLEX DEFICIENCY." WAS I LOW!

DON'T HIGH-HEAT ME! WHAT IS IT, WHAT YOU SAID?

MEANS A SHORTAGE OF THOSE WONDERFUL VITAMINS FOUND SO ABUNDANTLY IN YEAST AND RAW LIVER

YOU DON'T MEAN THAT GROCERY STORE YEAST, FLEISCHMANN'S, HAS THOSE HARD-TO-GET VITAMINS?

SURE! IT'S RICH IN THE VITAMIN B COMPLEX, AND YOU CAN'T LOOK OR FEEL YOUR BEST WITHOUT THOSE VITAMINS. FLEISCHMANN'S IS CHEAP, TOO

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST IS ONE OF THE RICHEST NATURAL SOURCES OF THE AMAZING VITAMIN B COMPLEX... AND TAKE IT THE DELICIOUS NEW WAY... IN TOMATO JUICE!

WASH a cold cake of Fleischmann's Yeast in a dry glass with a fork, then add a little tomato juice, milk, or water and STIR till blended... then fill glass, stir again, and DRINK... twice a day. It's especially delicious in tomato juice.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

THE HOME COMING Bees will find that the whole town will support them if they produce winning baseball. There is a general feeling in baseball circles that Casey Stengel's young ball club is ready to click. The team has fine defensive strength, and with good hitting it will give a splendid account of itself.

An idea of what Casey Stengel thinks of his club may be gained from the manager's willingness to invest part of his savings with the syndicate that has been angling to take over the team and keep Bob Quinn as president. Casey recognizes the fact the young Bees have more potential possibilities than any club in either league. It is an outfit with a future, and most of its present stars should be good for five to ten more years of big league baseball.

The series with the Dodgers will give a real line on the 1941 Bees as the invaders have one of the smartest clubs in the league. On paper it looks as if Brooklyn is the only team that has a chance to beat the Reds in the pennant race.

The combination of Manager Leo Durocher and Larry MacPhail, boss of the business office, is one of the strongest in baseball. Durocher has the same fire on the playing field that MacPhail has shown in handling the business details of the Dodgers.

MacPhail has proved that the way to get results in baseball, as is true in every other sport, is by spending money. As money came into the Brooklyn box office, Larry decided that the best use it could be put to was for new and better players. The deal by which MacPhail paid St. Louis $100,000 for Joe Medwick was merely one of the major transactions put through to make Brooklyn a pennant contender.

There was a time when the Dodgers were never rated with the Yanks and the Giants. Nowadays Brooklyn fans will tell you that the Dodgers are superior to either of their New York neighbors.

The Dodgers play hard, heads up baseball, and you may be sure they will be in there trying their utmost every second they are opposing the Bees.

In addition to the opening game today, there will be a double header tomorrow, one game in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

Marathon Runners Make Sacrifices

THERE IS NOT any group of athletes who make greater sacrifices and who get so little in return as the Marathon runners who will compete in the B. A. A. classic tomorrow. Most of the starters have spent months in preparation for the race. It has been necessary for them to adhere to the most strict training rules, and to punish their bodies severely in long daily workouts to build up the necessary vitality for the Patriots' Day test.

The strangest thing about Marathon running is that once an athlete makes good at it he will keep competing down through the years. Clarence DeMar, of course, is the outstanding example. As a young reporter, DeMar told me that after competing in the Olympics he would retire. DeMar meant what he said at the time, but the temptation to compete in another Marathon was always too great for him to resist.

The fact that the first eight men to finish in last year's race will be at the starting line in Hopkinton tomorrow noon when Walter Brown sends the big field away on the long trek to Boston is proof of the grip the sport has on the contestants.

The B. A. A. Marathon is the greatest free show on earth. It will be witnessed by 200,000 persons. The event finds entire families lined along the route to see the competition.

The cost of the race to the B. A. A. is about $300. The expenses are defrayed from the profit the B. A. A. makes from its indoor track meet.

Random Shots at Target

IT WAS HAPPY news for the Winter "books" when it was announced that an injury suffered by Bold Irishman in his stall will prevent his starting in the Kentucky Derby on May 3. . . . Bold Irishman was quoted at 10 to 1 in the Winter books and he was backed heavily. . . . Dispose is the Winter books favorite at odds of 5 to 1. . . . From now on the Derby field will start to narrow down, and it is unlikely that by post time there will be more than a dozen entries. . . . Little Beans, barring an unforeseen accident, is a certain Derby starter, according to Rocky Palacino. . . . Bold Irishman, back working once more, will be pointed for the Preakness at Pimlico which takes place a week after the Derby.

Betting in the winter "books" is taking a long shot in the dark. . . . One does not get his money back if his horse is not a starter.

Eddie Shore On 'All' Team

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 13 (AP)—The Cleveland Bruins, victors of the American Hockey League playoffs, must have been good. Three members of the champs were today named in the circuit's all-star first team which was selected by sports writers and radio commentators.

Providence placed two of its stars and the remaining position was filled by Hershey.

The first team: Cunningham, Cleveland, center; Locking, Cleveland, and Frost, Hershey, wings;

Young, Providence, and McKenzie, Cleveland, defense, and Karakas, Providence, goalie.

The second team: Thurier, Springfield, center; Sherf, Pittsburgh, and Desjais, Cleveland, wings; Jerwa, Cleveland, and Shore, Springfield, defense, and Raynor, Springfield, goalie.

The Shore picked on the second team is the veteran Eddie Shore, who in recent years was labeled "Mr. Moosey."

154 to Run in B. A. A. Marathon

All runners officially entered in the B. A. A. Marathon were notified today to report not later than 10:30 tomorrow morning at the Lucky Rock Manor in Hopkinton for final physical examinations before starting the classic race to Boston at noon.

The entry list closed with 154 hopefuls on the books of Director Tom Kanaly—a little less than in recent years. It was thought many of the young distance runners have joined the Army and are stationed too far away to try the big race this year.

FAIR WEATHER PROMISED
This will be the 45th running of the Patriots' Day classic, and every last detail was being checked today in anticipation of another huge turnout tomorrow afternoon.

BEES OPEN HOME SEASON AGAINST DODGERS TODAY

By BILL GRIMES

Amid gala ceremonies, the Boston Bees, the Hub's representatives in the National League, officially bow before their 1941 public today at Bees' Field with Jim Tobin facing Luke Hamlin of Brooklyn on the mound.

With Gov. Saltonstall out of town, Lieut.-Gov. Cahill was ready to throw the traditional first ball. Other pre-opening ceremonies called for the United States Marines to march to the flag pole where Old Glory will be unfurled.

Grove Faces Athletics

By HERB FINNEGAN

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 18.—Old Moss Grove, who needs seven victories to reach the magic 300 victory circle, was to be given a chance to notch one of that septet this afternoon as the Sox opened their two-game series with the high flying Athletics.

"If it's warm when we get out to the park, Grove will pitch," said Manager Joe Cronin this morning. "If it's cool or windy, Emerson Dickman will work and Grove will go tomorrow or the first warm day we have."

This is a delayed start for the 41-year-old southpaw. Last year he pitched the opening game in Washington and blanked the Senators with two hits. This year he has suffered three strokes of ill luck since spring training started.

NEW SIDELINE PITCH

First it was a cut hand in Mid-March which benched him for two weeks. Then it was a stiff neck, which kept him from pitching in the tropical climes of Cuba. Finally a severe cold kept him in bed for two days.

But he did pitch three innings against Cincinnati in Birmingham on Palm Sunday, and while he didn't have all his stuff, the Reds didn't score on him. He showed a new sideline pitch there for the first time, and planned to use it today against Eddie Collins, Jr., Dick Seibert and other A's left-handed batters.

It was a happy squad of Red Sox which arrived at the Broad St. station here this morning. They were leading the league as a result of their two hair-raising victories over the Senators in Boston, and they saw brighter days ahead.

KIDS MAY START SOON

"Wilson and Wagner didn't complete the jobs they started," Joe philosophized, "but those kid relief pitchers showed me plenty. I mean Earl Johnson, Tex Hughson and Mickey Harris, particularly Harris. He was great."

"If I find my original starting selections can't go through for me I'll give these kids a shot."

Ted Williams, his injured right ankle strapped tightly was in a jubilant mood today.

The Bees thus far have two wins and one loss, while Brooklyn was still trying to win its first official game of the season. President Bob Quinn of the Bees has invited the governors of all New England States to attend, but it was indicated that only Gov. Blood of New Hampshire would be able to get away.

Boston's Mayor Tobin planned to attend, along with other city fathers of Massachusetts, and members of the state Legislature and Boston city government.

ERRICKSON HAD NOTHING

Although they didn't get off to what could be deferred to as an auspicious start, the Bees are beginning to click. They were shocked by old Cy Blanton for six and two-third innings of the opening game down at Shibe Park at Philadelphia, during which they didn't connect with anything which even resembled a base hit.

But, if Dick Erickson had been out there that afternoon with even 50 per cent of his usual stuff, the Stenghmen would have been awarded the verdict and would be in a three cornered tie with the Cardinals and Giants for the lead in the National League race, instead of occupying third place, which isn't so bad.

Erickson didn't have a thing on the ball that afternoon but he might have stumbled through to a win but for the fact that in the fifth round it slipped "Bama" Rowell's mind that in order to make a double play, it is absolutely essential to get the first man.

DOVY HIT NOT OUT

But to Rowell a break, possibly the ball that Marty hit wasn't a D. P. play. However, it should have forced Bob Bragan out, when the scrambling was over, Bragan was on third and Marty had pulled up at second. And, right then Stan Benjamin, the South Framingham boy, belted a two-run three-bagger to the score board and Dick Erickson departed in favor of Jim Tobin, who wasn't equal to stopping Nick Eiten from singling Benjamin in from third.

When Erickson left the game, the Bees were down—five runs—but they weren't out by a long shot. Max West came through with a two-run circuit drive, after Bama Rowell had spoiled Blanton's "No hitter" by beating out a perfect bunt in the first of the seventh. But, in the last of the lucky round, with one down and men on first and third, Tobin was penalized for fooling Dan Litwhiler, who topped one down the third base line, which nobody could handle and over went what proved to be the winning run. For in the ninth, with Johnny Co-

SMALL FIELD TO COMPETE IN MARATHON

The weatherman has predicted fair and balmy weather, which should attract additional thousands along the 25-mile route.

Kelly also warned that no entries will be accepted today or at the starting line tomorrow, and those who try to get numbers at the dressing quarters in Hopkinton tomorrow will be told to wait another year if they want to take part.

The picturesque Lucky Rock Manor is in readiness to accommodate once again the swam of officials and athletes who are expected to start arriving in the early morning hours. Mrs. Alice McAlaie Tebeau, who presides over the Manor, will be on hand to greet her annual flock of visitors.

FOUR JUST MAKE WIRE

The front parlor of the Manor will be used from 10:30 until 11:45 for physical examinations by Dr. M. A. Cohen and Dr. George Gault. With their physical equipment O. K'd, the runners will be called to the central near the starting line to be checked by Clerk of Course and Starter Walter A. Brown.

The last entries to get under the wire came from Leo White of Medford, Bruno S. Mazzeo of Rockland, Me., Eldo L. Laro of the Village Club of Brookline and Manuel Souza, Jr., of the Y. M. C. A. in New Bedford.

The task of handling the huge throngs which will crowd the course in the last few miles is in the hands of C. D. "Doc" Wadsworth.

On Jim McHugh and Courage:

FINISHED 17TH IN MARATHON, BUT HE WAS CHAMP TO KIDS

By HERB FINNEGAN

JIM McHUGH never won the B. A. A. marathon; nor did he ever finish in the first ten. But Jim was our marathon idol when we were youngsters around Allston, and it was because of Jim that the Hopkinton to Boston grind became an annual favorite of ours.

Jim would train for the 25-mile grind all winter, trudging through the snow-laden streets. He never had a coach. Never ran in high school because he didn't go to high school.

But Jim was Clarence De Mar, Tarzan Brown, Johnny Kelley and Leslie Pawson rolled into one with us, and great was our elation when, in the pre-war days, he came running past Coolidge Corner in 25th position. How the kids cheered him! Clarence De Mar never got such an ovation!

Everybody vied to give him half an orange, and everybody took turns dousing him with water until they were chased off the course.

It was a tonic to Jim, and he ran as he never did before. He finished in 17th position, and he was awarded a bronze medal for six months of assiduous effort.

Long and loud was the celebration after the race. It lasted for days. No Olympic hero ever was paid such homage. Why, Jim even retained his popularity after he joined the police force.

There will be a lot of Jim McHugh in tomorrow's 45th annual B. A. A. grind, now lengthened to 26 miles, 365 yards.

Johnny Miles Beat the Olympic Champion

FOLKS WONDER why the Jims run their hearts out year in and year out when they don't have to. No B. A. A. committee ever forced a man to run the marathon. There is no financial reward.

But well'wager that every one of the male spectators who line the course yearly has felt the urge at some time to get out there and test his skill against the De Mars, the Mileses, the Rays, the Kelleys, the Browns, etc. And how many Jim McHugh are there with courage enough to try it before the eyes of 300,000 spectators?

There is a lot of personal satisfaction in a deed well done, and, to our adolescent minds, Jim did his exceptionally well because he ran from Coolidge Corner to Exeter st. faster than any other man in the race. Think of the personal glow that surged through young Johnny Miles of Sidney Mines, N. S., as he defeated Albin Stenroos in '26—Stenroos, the great Finn who had won the Olympic marathon in '24.

It was his first and only B. A. A. marathon effort, and he was a top heavy favorite.

Imagine his consternation when he found the unknown Miles, in sneakers no less, hanging onto him at Brae Burn. Imagine his consternation when he saw the youngster pass him at Boston College and go on to break the course record!

Didn't the kid read the papers? Didn't he know Stenroos was the world champion? The gall of him!

Jote Ray Finishes With Bleeding Feet

THERE HAVE BEEN many highlights in the 44 years this B. A. A. marathon has been held, but here are the ones the boys in Allston will be talking about tomorrow as they trudge over to Coolidge Corner to cheer on the Jim McHugh of 1941:

1907 (The old boys remember it!)—Bob Fowler of Cambridge being held up by a freight train at Framingham, and the Indian Tom Longboat, who had just beaten the train, piling up such a lead the field couldn't catch him.

1909—Henri Renaud, a darkhorse, surviving the 95 degree heat to win.

1914—Jimmy Duffy, from Hamilton, Canada, kidding Eduard Fabre of Montreal out of victory. Fabre was young and strong, and the tiring Duffy saying "Stay with me, kid. We're way ahead. I'll let you win in the last couple of hundred yards. Stay with me. I'll show you how," Duffy storing up enough reserve to beat out the surprised Fabre in the dash to the tape.

1915—Fabre, listening to nobody, and winning the race he could have won the year before.

1920—Arthur Roth, slim little Roxbury boy, passing Jimmy Henigan at Brae Burn and saying, "Come on, Jim," as he went by. Roth leading but staggering at the Harvard Club, and watching the Greek bus boy, Peter Trivoulides, pass him. What was Roth thinking of then?

1925—Cold, windy day, and Chuck Mellor, combatting the elements with a quid of tobacco in his mouth, newspapers under his running shirt, stocking hat and gloves—and winning.

1926—Jote Ray, determined to make Olympic team, running with the blood oozing from his shoes, and finishing third. No gamier boy ever put a shoe on. Doctors soaking socks off his feet, the hobbling around Boston on crutches for a week, unable to put on a pair of shoes.

1930—Clarence De Mar, who first won the race in 1911, capturing it for the seventh time, a record that probably will stand forever.

1940—Gerard Cole lowering Tarzan Brown's course record to 2:28:28.3.

Gomez Makes Good in Crucial Test

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

What goes on here? Weren't we all assured that the Reds and Dodgers would step right out from the gun and battle each other all the way down to the pennant wire? We surely were. Well, what happened? Today we find those world champion Reds sharing the National League basement with the horrific Dodgers and the waiting among the good burghers of Cincinnati must be as sorrowful as the howling of the embittered fans along the sweet-scented cowans.

But, as an ancient sage once remarked, it's little surprises like that which serve to try men's souls to say nothing of keeping the fans stirred up and the turnstiles clicking.

There is too much inherent class in both Reds and Dodgers for them to remain in the doldrums and it won't be long before they will be up where they belong.

GOMEZ ON SPOT

Meanwhile, it is a pleasure to report the comeback of one of the most fellows in baseball.

We mean Lefty Gomez, the wise-cracking southpaw of the Yankees. Lefty was unruffled for the first time yesterday against the Athletics and there was a feeling of tenseness everywhere from the bleachers to the dugouts.

Everybody knew that Lefty was on the spot. If he failed, he was through as a major leaguer. If he made good, well, Joe McCarthy may have another 20-game winner.

Lefty hasn't been worth much to the Yanks for two years because of a lame back. But he had plenty yesterday as he gave the A.'s only three hits up to the ninth and breezed in, 9 to 4.

You have heard that old gag about Babe Herman, the old Dodger outfielder, being his own head by a fly ball? Well, we never saw that happen to Babe but it actually did happen to Sam Chapman, center fielder of the Athletics yesterday, and the mushy-touched off a seven-run barrage against Porter Vaughn.

Joe Gordon hit a long drive that Chapman lost in the sun and when the ball came down it landed on his head and was scored as a two-bagger, and if a thing like that didn't affect old Connie Mack, he'll probably live another 75 years.

Al Smith, another lefty, held the White Sox to six hits and the Indians again won, 2 to 0. The Senators and Red Sox and the Tigers and Browns were washed out.

The difference between Bump Hadley and Curt Davis yesterday was noted chiefly in the timing of their departure. Both were terrible but Bill Terry got rid of Hadley in time to assure him of a 7.5 triumph over the Dodgers while Lew Burdette let Davis linger just a little too long.

Kay and Mize hit homers for the Cards but the all-important hombre was Max Lanier who came in to pitch the ninth with the bags fully tenanted and one out and retired the side.

54 Sox Root for Campbell To Get Another Chance

PHILADELPHIA, April 13—First Baseman Paul Campbell has Clyde Sukeforth as his manager at Montreal, and Sukeforth may be able to help the flashy young Sox farmhand with his hitting. Campbell is no weakly with the stick, having hit .284 at Louisville last year, but it is felt he would get more power in his drives if he didn't try to break away from the plate so quickly. Campbell proved he could hit a fairly long ball when he was coming North with the Sox, but half the time he'd seem to be 10 yards down the baseline before he completed his swing. He's a scrappy little rouser, and everybody on the Red Sox is hoping he'll get a shot at a big league job before long.

Doe Prothro, who had seen Campbell play in the minors, wanted him for his Phillies last spring, but Louisville, a Sox farm club, wouldn't let him go. Campbell annually was voted the most popular player on the Colonels, and the townfolk wanted to keep him, and they did. Campbell might have succeeded where Art Mahan failed because he's much faster than Art, and couldn't have hit worse than the Somerville boy, who wound up under the .350 mark.

Sukeforth is a Maine boy who played at Auburn Classical Institute before coming to the Sox. While in college, he played for the New Hampshire team. He was a first baseman and a catcher. He was a good player, and a good manager. He was a good player, and a good manager. He was a good player, and a good manager.

There were many disappointed fans outside Fenway Park 24 hours ago. The sun was shining brightly, and they couldn't understand why the final Sox-Nats game was postponed. Joe Cronin, however, claimed the outfield was so raked, soaked it couldn't possibly dry out before game time.

Tommy Dyer, Sox coach, spent the afternoon at Fenway waiting for Frankie Pytlak to show up so that they could resume their series for the club checkers championship. Tommy has held the title for years. Frankie, down south, even went so far as to buy a book on checkers so eager was he to unseat Tom. But the latter is still sitting on the throne. But Pytlak isn't worrying much. Who would, with 5 hits in 3 tries to date?

War talk was in the air at Fenway, and Eddie Collins recalled the World War days. The full major league schedule was played in 1917, the first war year, and a curtailed schedule was played in 1918, with the world series coming the first week in September.

"I doubt that there would have been any major league baseball in 1919 if the Armistice hadn't been signed the previous December," said the Sox general manager.

What will 1942 bring in major league baseball?

Buddy Baer, Louis Signed For May 23 Bout

WASHINGTON, April 18 (INS)—Joe Louis will defend his world's heavyweight boxing championship against Buddy Baer of California here May 23. Contracts for the bout, scheduled for 15 rounds, were signed here today by Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York and Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington American League, baseball park, where the bout will be staged.

B. C. NETMEN BEATEN

DAVIDSON, N. C., April 18—The Davidson College netmen defeated Boston College, 9-0, here.

By JACK CONWAY

Fritzie Zivic will rely upon his hitting power to offset the boxing brilliance of Mike Kaplan in their ten-round battle at the Garden tonight.

Zivic will hold a string on his would-be welterweight champion when he starts shooting punches at the Dorchester youth by the terms of the contest governing the bout. Kaplan is obliged to weigh in above the welterweight notch of 147 pounds.

Zivic can get knocked out, and he will still be welterweight boss. Kaplan recognizes this situation but feels that if he wins the duke that public demand will compel Zivic to meet him in a return contest with the title at stake.

FEELING RUNNING HIGH

As far as the public is concerned, it knows it is going to witness a stirring tussle in the Garden ring tonight, and it is not concerned too much over the fact it is an over-weight match.

There is real feeling between Zivic and Kaplan and this should add a little extra excitement to the fight. This situation is due to the fact Kaplan claims he was knocked down in his last battle with Zivic while the champion held him around the neck with his right hand. Fritzie employed a short left hook to the jaw to drop Kaplan to J. canvas.

This knockdown was sufficient to win Zivic a split decision.

KAPLAN BETTER BOXER

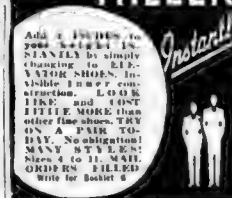

While Zivic is best known for his aggressiveness and walloping power, he is also a good boxer. Kaplan will find that Zivic has a good left jab, while the Pittsburgh welterweight also punches sharply with his right hand.

Kaplan cannot punch with Zivic, but is a shade the better boxer. Mike has proved his boxing class in 50 bouts. In this long list of contests, he has only lost two decisions.

Zivic and Kaplan are each in perfect condition, and prepared to step at top speed every second they are in the ring.

TEXAS JOCKEY RISKED LIFE TO 'FIX' RACE

LOS ANGELES, April 18 (INS)—Testimony disclosing one jockey allegedly risked his life to earn bribes from crooked gamblers at California race tracks was introduced here in the trial of five reputed race-fixers.

Leonard Scott, 19-year-old Texas jockey, testified he narrowly missed death or serious injury when he made a horse buck and throw him during a race at Tanforan last year in order to earn a $200 bribe.

He said that it was through Sol Greenberg, named as one of the defendants, that he first met Bernard Elinstoss, alias Barney Mooney, another defendant, and arranged to pull horses. This meeting, he said, took place at the Tanforan race meet in the spring of 1940.

"Mooney said he would give me $200 for every horse I pulled when the horse went to the post at less than 4 to 1, and $100 when the post odds were more than 4 to 1," Scott said. "I agreed to pull horses for him and during the Tanforan meet I 'took' Armadillo, Ominato, Kid War Cry, Lyander and Timberlark."

He said he received more than $900 from Mooney during the meeting.

Freddie Miller, another jockey, testified that the main topic of conversation in the jockey's room before a race is the "pulling" of horses.

Conn Insists on First Crack at Louis' Title

PITTSBURGH, April 18 (INS)—Mike Jacobs was having more "Conn trouble" today in the wake of a telegram sent him by Billy's manager, Johnny Ray, who still insists that his boy get a shot at Joe Louis before either Manager Ray and the New York fight promoter apparently had a telephone conversation yesterday during which Jacobs asked the local fighter to give way to either Baer or Simon. Ray's telegram, however, left no doubt as to what he thinks of the situation. It read:

"I have decided that I will not fight Louis in June or July if Louis fights Baer or anyone else before he boxes Conn. If Louis should get beat, and there is always a chance of that, or if he should hurt his hands or get injured in any other way, Conn would be out of luck for either a bout with Louis or with whoever beats Louis as Louis would take on the man who beats him in a return fight before he would meet Conn."

"The whole situation is so unfair to Conn that I have to take this stand."

Conn at present is under a contract to fight Louis in June with a 20 per cent cut.

"If Jacobs wants to give us the brush-off," Ray said later, "that's up to him, but with the outstanding challenger and a boy who has a real chance to throw uncertainty about the outcome around a title fight, I'm sitting all right."

Mungo Face $20,000 Suit

Van Lingle Mungo, veteran right-hander of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today was named defendant in a $20,000 damage suit, filed by Francisco Colladra Carreno, Cuban dancer, who claims that injuries allegedly inflicted on him by the hurler last month in Havana have cost him several remunerative contracts.

A bond of $500 was posted by the Brooklyn club for Mungo, who has been given 20 days in which to answer the charges. Mungo is in Boston today with his teammates. Carreno claims the Brooklyn pitcher hit him in a scuffle in the room of an entertainer at the Nacional Hotel in Havana.

Greenwich Gunner Hits Perfect Score

SEA ISLAND, Ga., April 18 (AP)—Hitting 100 straight targets in the 20-gauge event of the annual invitation skeet tournament here is getting to be the expected performance from S. L. Hutcheson of Greenwich, Ct.

He made that score yesterday for the third consecutive year in winning the event as the fifth annual tournament got under way.

W. W. Rapley of Washington won the Class A sub-small bore competition by hitting 48 out of 50 targets while Hutcheson broke 47. Mrs. M. L. Smythe of Aurora, O., hit 95 out of 100 targets to win the Class A ladies' 20-gauge event. Harriet Behrend of Erie, Pa., was Class B winner and Mrs. S. L. Hutcheson the Class C winner.

Bees Open Home Stand With Dodgers

ney and Max West aboard, Eddie Miller rifled one of Blanton's pitches into the left field stands for three runs, one short of a draw.

FERRILL BETTER PITCHER

Manny Salvo pitched great ball in the second game. For eight and a third innings, he held the Phillies, not only scoreless, but, to one infield hit. But in the ninth, the Phillies pushed across one run, which cost him a shutout on two singles and a fly out.

Wes Ferrell, Bob Dahlgren and Max West supported by Eddie Miller and Bama Rowell, the best double play combination in either major league, stole the show in the third and deciding game at Philadelphia.

After he had been maltreated by the Red Sox last Saturday at National League Field, Ferrell offered to wager $5000 that he'd win 15 games for the Bees this season, and he was serious. Since the first week he was at San Antonio, Wes has insisted that his arm is O. K. But in the 10 innings he pitched against the St. Louis Browns, Wes received a terrible going over. He was nicked for 12 hits, which combined with 10 walks netted the Haneysen 9 runs. And, last Saturday, the Red Sox did a job on him.

When Casey Stengel sent Ferrell to the mound yesterday at Shibe Park, the situation wasn't what could be called a perfect set up for a veteran, who was trying to make a come-back.

The Phillies had knocked Joe Sullivan and Nick Stincovich out of the box in the round that Ferrell received the nod from "Ol' Case" to take over. And believe it or not, it takes a great pitcher to stop any club which has made two three baggers, three singles and three runs in the inning he takes over. And, that is what Ferrell did.

Regardless of all reports to the contrary, Ferrell is a better pitcher today than he was when Tom Yawkey bought him for his Red Sox from the Cleveland Indians in 1934.

In the first place he is faster. Right now he hasn't the control of his curve ball that he'll have in the next month. But there is now something on his "hard one." And Wes has always been a winning pitcher, otherwise Stengel would never have agreed to give him a tryout.

Hot Box Causes Bees, Dodgers To Lose Sleep

The Bees and Dodgers were one hour and twenty minutes late in arriving in Boston for their game at National League Park as a result of a hot box on their train. The defective hot box was removed at New Haven.

The players lost considerable sleep as a result of the accident to the equipment of the train. Upon arrival here, the players hurried to their local quarters to get a few hours of rest before going to the ball park for the opening.

FLY FISHERMEN TAKING DEADLIER TOLL; FEWER SALMON THAN USUAL BEING CAUGHT

By DARK MONTREAL

I can't recall a "first week of fishing" when the weather was more benign, nor one more productive generally, and since 5 o'clock Tuesday morning when Tom Smith held up a 3-pound square-tail for my jealous approval, I've seen a lot of good fish taken.

On all of the ponds, and most of the streams I have checked since opening day, flies have taken a deadlier toll than bait and that is an unusual condition for this time of year; the fly fishermen, casters and trollers, have pressed this advantage home.

The general survey reveals fewer salmon than usual being taken and nearly all of these caught in Cliff, Long and Shubels rose to trotted lured, either big streamers or smelt. In fact I know of only two salmon caught on opening day on shrimp.

MANY SQUARETAILS TAKEN

The big rainbows, a bit sluggish with spawning season, were also off their feed and not many of the great number of brown trout stocked this season were creled.

But the brookies more than made up for the lack of other species. More of the large squaretails have been taken than I can remember in Massachusetts and they were all prime fish in fine fighting condition. I saw one such hooked off Storrow's point in Long Pond Tuesday afternoon that required such gentle handling it took a canoe all across the pond to the northeast shore before it was brought to net, though the angler had it alongside a half dozen times.

Stream fishing in the eastern section of the state got off to a good start but the reporting wardens noted few limit creels of better than average trout. This was true even in the brooks stocked by the clubs and one good reason, no doubt, was the large turnout of anglers rolling up the water and shaking the banks.

No season is ever well begun without a few tales of good nature which nevertheless stand up under close scrutiny.

LEADER FAPPED

Tom Smith had come over to Long from his Whitehorse Beach base at daybreak and he already had the squaretail aforementioned when he pulled alongside the boat where Frank Turner and I were anchored in the corner of Cook's Hole chumming the first handful of a quart of Bill Dupe's shrimp. We chinned and chummed for an hour without action and Tom finally said:

"Guess I'll put on a fly and go back to trolling."

He tied on a streamer, tossed it over the side and turned to start hauling anchor when his rod leaped almost out of the boat, tip under water. In a bad position anyway, and thinking first of saving the rod, he struck too heavily and the leader snapped.

"Well," he said, "I guess I don't know how to fish any more. I'll bet I could have cast that fly till doomsday in the same spot and never raised a fish."

Then there was Cliff Ware, of Brockton, in his newly launched S. S. Clearwater. Cliff hooked a fish, while trolling a fly, that just kept on going, cleaning the entire line and backing off the reel. I had a similar experience there two years ago.

Those are stories of the ones that got away. There is another of one that didn't.

Elmer Raymond seldom gets an opportunity to fish on opening day he is so busy greeting old friends, fitting them out with boats and equipment and hiding them good luck and Tuesday was no exception. Along about midmorning when most of the anglers were on the pond and only a few of us were ashore in the cove getting our second wind, a big trout rose just off one of Raymond's little

"Well," said Elmer, "if I can't pierce and rose a second time, attracting our attention.

go to the fish they'll always come to me."

He walked up to his house, got his rod, leisurely baited it with a shrimp and making one cast to the spot where the fish had risen 10 minutes before he hooked a squaretail that weighed an ounce under three pounds.

Cornell Nine Here Tomorrow

Harvard's rapidly improving nine will face the Big Red of Cornell tomorrow afternoon at Ithaca in an Ivy League game. Cornell, last year's winner, is the title choice again this year despite a setback at the hands of Penn.

Conch Floyd Stahl is banking on the powerful arm of Mort Waldstein, soph ace from Brookline and grid player, to halt the Big Red. Mort has been the most effective Crimson hurler to date, having performed well on the southern tour and this week he turned back the strong B. U. team. The Brookline pitcher looks like one of the best moundmen in recent years at Cambridge.

In the second game, either Burgoyne or Charlie Brackett will twirl. Neither has shown last year's form to date.

Cornell, still smarting under the Harvard professional blast last fall, will be out to whitewash the Cantabs and with that view in mind Coach Mose Quinn has nominated Walt Sickles and Bud Jenkins to pitch. Sickles is a big-league prospect and was the leading pitcher in the league last season. Cornell downed the Crimson twice last year by the scores of 10-5 and 17-6.

Other Harvard contests tomorrow are a tennis match with Columbia at Cambridge, a rugby contest with Long Island U. at Cambridge, and a lacrosse game with Stevens at Hoboken, N. J. The Harvard frosh line will clash with Wentworth at Cambridge in a morning game. The Harvard frosh are undefeated to date.

Are You Honest? Try This Test!

Do you pretend you know how to play the piano when company's about?

ARE YOU HONEST?

You may have determined your intelligence quotient—your I. Q.—but have you ever found out your honesty quotient—your H. Q.?

You can do so with a copy of The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

For, as a special feature, quiz expert Judith T. Chase has prepared an ingenious questionnaire, which you answer yes or no. For example: Do you tell company you can play the piano when you can't? Do you cheat on your diet? Do you peep under cards in solitaire? You'll find Miss Chase's "Really Now—How Honest Are You?"—an enjoyable and self-revealing game. Don't miss it Sunday.

WHO WAS THE LOVELIEST woman of antiquity?

There are many who say it was not Cleopatra, nor any of those beauties famed in legend and story. Instead, they name Queen Nefertiti, beloved wife of Pharaoh Amenhotep IV.

What do we know of her? What has history to tell of her life and times?

Gonciève Tabouis, distinguished archeologist and writer, tells you about the great, lost queens of Egypt in a specially illustrated, double page article in The American Weekly.

AT LEAST TWO WOMEN found they'd received draft questionnaires...

A band of Indians arrived at draft headquarters in full fighting regalia...

A Hindu registered under two names, thinking he'd draw two men's pay.

For oddities in Uncle Sam's great draft movement, see The American Weekly Sunday.

EVER HEAR of the "Screaming Skulls of Calgarth"?

A brooding and mysterious tale of ghosts whose nocturnal prowling has been disturbed by air raid alarms, and what happened thereafter in Windemere, England... it appears in The American Weekly Sunday.

APPARENTLY, simple country maidens no longer have a monopoly on being taken in by a smooth line of talk.

Because court cases now show that they are meeting stiff competition from their very sophisticated city sisters.

Don't miss the ending of this swift-moving tale of mystery and a girl's determination to be master of her own fate.

"LET YOUR refrigerator 'cook' for you."

So suggests Mrs. Christine Frederick, the distinguished authority on household efficiency, in an article Sunday. And she explains all you want to know about refrigerator recipes, and how to make the best use of both refrigerator and ice box.

In addition, you'll find, in the Housewife's Food Almanac, a number of little-known Shanghai recipes Chinese housewives use to make any of those utterly delicious dishes we all enjoy.

These are but a few of the features awaiting you in The American Weekly, the magazine you'll find distributed with the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

$6100 DOWNTOWN HOLDUP

Four bandits held up two employees of a Kneeland st. dress concern at Harvard and Washington sts. at noon today, slugged the men and escaped with a bag containing $6100. One of the bandits was captured after a quarter of a mile chase by pedestrians.

The employees were returning to the wholesale dress shop of Murray White from the Pilgrim Trust Co., where they had drawn the money for a payroll. The messengers were Bruno Riccardi, 20, of Jefferson st., Somerville, and Max Rodman, 23, of Nightingale st., Dorchester.

The holdup was staged in the midst of a noon-time crowd of pedestrians and took place only 50 yards from the busy traffic intersection at Washington, Kneeland and Stuart sts.
